Big Country. Big Wonders. Meet Another Octopus. Real for Him. He's Dead. I'll Make You Love Me.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

NATURE AND providence made this country on a big scale. Some of the biggest things are still unknown to a majority of us. Pike's Peak, the Mississippi, Niagara Falls and the oil deposits we all know. But few know about the gigantic limestone caverns of Carlsbad in New Mexico. An invitation to see the caverns from President Paul Shoup of the Southern Pacific Railroad gives this information:

"You can put the national capitol into the biggest cave so far discovered, and then have a Zeppelin sail over it without touching the roof."

Get your new car, drive out to see that cave, see other wonders in New Mexico and drive on to the Pacific Coast and see the biggest thing of all, the Pacific Ocean.

A NEW "octopus" is coming. Messrs. Eaton, of the Republic Steel, Campbell, of the Youngstown Company, and Grace, of Bethlehem Steel, are in New York planning a two billion dollar steel merger.

Once upon a time that would have set all the muck rakers to raking violently. And the Supreme Court would have said:

"You mustn't do it; you are growing too big."

But we have passed that stage, and have taken for our motto "the bigger the better."

MANY THAT read this call the unemployment problem "a passing thing," not too serious. It was quite serious for Harry Drucker, Hungarian shoemaker, who came to this country after the World War, found a job repairing shoes, then opened a little store and married. Twins were born, everything was promising.

Now the twins are near death. In a hospital where the father, who attempted to kill them, is dying. The mother is dead, killed by her husband. Hard times closed the store, work could not be found. He, his wife and the twins starved more or less for seven months. Now it is over.

No "theory" about that.

RUSSIA IS modern. Gigantic agricultural machinery "combines" such as few American farmers have ever seen, travel fifty or a hundred miles in a straight line across immense wheat fields. What the Russians do, is done on a gigantic scale. Now they are spending $45,000,000 on a powerful broadcasting wireless plan. They will broadcast their theories on government, and the sins of "capitalism" and whether you like them or not, the theories will come rattling into your radio.

Making people listen, of course, will be another thing. But some will listen, especially in these times.

THE EFFORT of Stalin to make you like his theories reminds you of Frederick the Great's father, chasing little boys into a corner, and beating them severely, saying "I'll MAKE you love me."

MONEY IS still lent in Wall Street "on call" at one per cent. Two years ago nobody would have dreamed of such cheap money.

A few years hence many will wonder why they did not take advantage of it.

Otto H. Kahn, who really understands finance, said last Wednesday:

"Two years from now, looking back, you will not believe that it was really possible to buy the best securities at the ridiculous prices of today. Then it will be too late."

ONCE IN LONDON a man wagered that the public would not buy real gold sovereigns for sixpence each if they were offered at that price. He tried the experiment and the public refused to buy. America is doing that now.

THERE IS a puzzle in Washington, entitled "To hear or not to hear the Wickersham report."

Congress would like to know what Mr. Wickersham and his friends have to say about prohibition after such long sitting. When a hen has been on her nest for 21 days you expect to hear a chicken peep.

On the other hand, the interests that are our real government, don't want an extra session of Congress. In their opinion the safest Congressman is one at home, far from Washington.

They fear the Wickersham report, for it may stir up questions that will force an extra session.

What would you do in that puzzling affair?

THE PRICE of bar silver drops again. Even the very "best" financial minds, that worshipped the gold standard, as fire worshipers did the sun, begin to admit that silver, pale financial moon, requires attention.

Destroying the value of silver has destroyed the buying power of 800,000,000 people, half the population of the globe, including all in China and India.

When you impoverish 800,000,000 of your customers, you do not help business.

SIXTY THOUSAND cattle are slowly crossing the Australian continent. Once in six years heavy rains fall in the interior. Water holes are filled, the ground is covered with grass.

19 TRAPPED, RESCUERS DIGGING

Laborer, Fleeing Avalanche in Tunnel, Drops Pipe Under Debris for Life-Giving Air

International News Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 10.—An emergency crew of drillers today was working at the Camp Mitchell tunnel of the Hetch Hetchy water project in an effort to release 19 men trapped underground by a cave-in. They had reached the half-way point through the debris shortly before daylight.

Shortly after the wall of rock and silt fell last night rescue workers drove air pipes through and oxygen was pumped to the entombed men. None of the workers was killed in the slide, reports declared.

The first message received from those trapped said that they were all right, that they had enough air, and that the men were going to open their lunch boxes and eat.

Due to the quick thinking and acting of Welby Morgan, 28, a "nozzleman," the entombed men probably were saved from death. He saw the cave-in coming. When he was fleeing through a shower of debris he saw a 20-foot length of 4-inch pipe. He picked it up as he ran, and dropped it at a point which he figured would be the center of the "slide." His calculations were perfect. When the earth and rock settled in the tunnel, the pipe extended into the cavity where the men were trapped and the other end was where rescue workers could use it to pump air through.

STEEL MERGER RUMOR DENIED BY J. & L.

Bethlehem Officials Say Grace Is Not Negotiating With Other Companies

Reports that a new consolidation of steel companies to include Jones & Laughlin, Bethlehem, Republic, Youngstown, Corrigan McKinney and Otis were emphatically denied by the officials of the two largest organizations mentioned.

Officials of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation said that the rumor could not be denied too emphatically.

STRONG DENIAL

Officials of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation in New York made a similar statement. They also denied that Eugene G. Grace, president of the company, was in negotiation with other steel officials with any such merger in view.

Steel men in this district were of the opinion that Jones & Laughlin would be a desirable acquisition for any merger, but they stated that they could not see any advantage from the standpoint of the local company.

LOCAL FIRM SECURE

With its operations concentrated in this district, with the advantages of water transportation for coal and finished products, with one of the lowest production costs in the industry and with only a small funded debt, Jones & Laughlin Steel is in a position almost unequaled in the industry. Other companies would have to pay a very handsome price to tempt those now in control, according to the general opinion here.

VETERANS LAUD MEMOIRS OF PERSHING

A. E. F. Men From Private To Colonel Anxiously Await Leader's Story

The long hoped-for story of the American participation in the World War, as revealed in the Memoirs of Gen. John J. Pershing, which begin in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Monday, has brought forward much favorable comment, especially from former service men.

That these men, who went through some of the bitterest fighting of the last days of the great conflict, are convinced of the importance of these revelations and in the ability of Gen Pershing to present them in forceful form, is shown in the manner in which they received news that at last the memoirs of America's great leader are soon to be published.

JUDGE FOSTER COMMENTS

Judge D. Paulson Foster, of Allegheny County Court:

"As a former private in the American Expeditionary Forces, I look forward with keen anticipation to the memoirs of Gen. Pershing and think they will be followed with intense interest by the rank and file, as it will be our first opportunity to learn why certain things were being done 'over there.' I suppose it is too much to expect that these memoirs will reveal such important matters as why the mess kitchen didn't catch up with us so many times, but possibly he will find out the reason for the perpetual motion, as it were, of the A. E. F. and the constant taking up of new positions, and many other things of interest to the private soldier, for certainly Gen. Pershing is the one who ought to know."

A. A. Turner, first sergeant, Co. L, 319th Infantry, 80th Division; wounded in Argonne Forest; and now a patient in U. S. Veterans Hospital, Aspinwall:

"I believe the general public will be furnished with a long-

BOBBIE TROUT

GIRLS END HOP WITH RECORD

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Bobbie Trout and Edna May Cooper, both in their twenties, rested today after having established a new women's endurance flight record of 122 hours, 50 minutes.

The girls landed unexpectedly at 5:20 p. m. yesterday, ending their flight because of a cracked cylinder in the motor of their small monoplane, the Lady Rolph. They almost tripled the former women's record of 42 hours, 16 minutes set by Miss Trout and Elinor Smith.

As fresh as though the five-day flight had been only a pleasure spin, Bobbie and Edna each had a "glad to be back" and a "hated to come down" for the startled crowd.

PRESIDENT WILL DEFY SENATE

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(INS.)—President Hoover's reply to the Senate's action in requesting him to return the papers of his three appointees to the Federal Power Commission may go to the Senate today, it was indicated at the White House.

During the forenoon, Mr. Hoover was in conference with Attorney General Mitchell and Senator Hebert (Rep.), of Rhode Island, a constitutional authority.

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—An extraordinary political dilemma confronted President Hoover today as a result of the Senate's action in formally requesting him to return the nominations of three new federal power commissioners, who were confirmed and sworn into office before Christmas.

This precedent-shattering request was made in reference to the appointments of George Otis Smith, chairman; Marsel Garsaud and Claude L. Draper. It was the Senate's reply to their order dismissing Charles A. Russell, attorney, and William V. King, accountant, looked upon as "enemies of the power trust."

REQUEST SENT HOOVER

The Senate first voted to reconsider each nomination and then requested the President to return the necessary papers. There were two record roll-calls on Smith; the Senate first voting 44 to 37 to reconsider his appointment and then, by a like vote, requested the return of his nomination. The same action was taken toward Draper and Garsaud, but without record votes.

It was the first time in history the Senate has made such a request of the President after an

MATE BELIEVED GIRL ABDUCTOR

RIDGWAY, Pa., Jan. 10.—(INS.)—Gula Neuriter, 19-year-old maid, who was abducted from the home of State Representative John N. Flynn, her employer, today was believed by police to be speeding toward Washington, D. C., in the automobile of her husband, William Franklin Copenhaver, whom she married January 8.

Police said they were secretly married before Justice of the Peace Holmes, at Emporium, Pa.

Residents of Elk County, together with police officials, began an intensive hunt for the two men who late last night drove up to the Flynn home and were said by police to have forced the lightly-clad girl into their automobile.

U. S. Steel Orders Up 303,960 Tons

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation as of December 31 increased 303,960 tons over the previous month to 3,943,596 tons, comparing with 3,639,636 tons on November 30; 3,481,763 tons on October 31, and 4,417,193 tons on December 31, 1929.

Tomb of Saviour Found Near Jerusalem, Berlin Archeologist Asserts

BERLIN, Jan. 10.—(Universal.)—Dr. E. L. Sukenik, professor of archaeology at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem, in an interview today, confirmed his discovery of a burial tablet bearing the inscription, "Jesus, Son of Joseph," among the sepulchral ruins outside Jerusalem.

Dr. Sukenik disclosed his important find Thursday to the Archaeological Institute of Berlin, stating that it was a delicate subject on which he would make further research before making definite comment. In an exclusive talk with the Universal Service correspondent, however, he stated:

"There cannot be the slightest doubt that the ossuary (grave urn or box) dates back to the period of the death of the Nazarene. All articles found in the neighborhood belong to the same epoch.

"Tablets in adjacent ossuaries also bear New Testament names like Maria, Martha, Elizabeth and Mathias. The majority are in Hebrew, but there are a few Greek characters on the epitaphs."

Prof. Sukenik showed photographs of the ossuary which was marked "Jesus, son of Joseph." The ossuary measures 15 by 20 inches at the front. The top is ornamented with two Oriental stars covering nearly the entire surface, and the inscription is engraved in antique Hebrew characters in the upper right hand corner.

The archaeologist emphasized that he did not wish to draw any conclusions, and did not want to assert that he had found the coffin of Jesus Christ. He declared:

"I am concerned merely with the archaeological, not the religious significance."

Asked where the ossuary now reposed, Dr. Sukenik replied:

BURGLAR FLEES BY FIRE ESCAPE

A burglar fled by way of the fire escape early today from the third floor apartment of Mrs. Agnes Berg, 555 Rosedale street, she reported to police, as she and her friend, Miss Mary Hutson, entered the apartment.

John Filgrove, 17, of 543 Rosedale street, who was spending the night with Mrs. Berg's son, Raymond, 14, called to Mrs. Berg as she entered:

"There is a man in your kitchen."

As Mrs. Berg and Miss Hutson reached the kitchen door, they said a man with a flashlight and wearing a soft hat was starting down the fire escape.

Young Filgrove said the burglar had bent over him as he lay in bed and put the flashlight on his face. He was too frightened to make an outcry. The prowler obtained nothing, Mrs. Berg said.

Youngstown Ousts Reds Ruling Refuge for Needy

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—A "Workers' Council," headed by admitted Communists, last night seized control of "Friendly Inn," the city's new sleeping quarters for the unemployed—but this morning a former U. S. Marine was standing guard over the portals.

When Capt. James Hepburn, of the Salvation Army, appeared to take charge of the former police sub-station, which has been equipped with army cots and blankets, the "Workers' Council," headed by Alfred Walton, refused to let him take charge.

Mayor Joseph L. Heffernan and Police Chief Paul Lyden, called to the scene, told Walton the Salvation Army would run the place or it would be closed. The mayor finally picked out N. E. Wilson, veteran of the Argonne and a soldier of fortune, and put him in charge.

The mayor returned later to sit on a cot and swap yarns with the unemployed. He distributed tobacco and tried to give his overshoes to a man—but they wouldn't fit. Today all was quiet on the "Friendly Inn" front.

Big Sums Fail to Lure Einstein Into Movies

PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Albert Einstein is one movie actor Hollywood cannot sign up.

Contracts were offered him when he reached New York, again when he reached here. The shrewd competitive contract men of the film capital felt certain they could land the scientist with offers of money, but their efforts were fruitless.

They did not know that he is a movie actor, and that he has an unwritten contract. It is one of the kind they cannot understand any more than their imagination can comprehend the mystifying equations by which Einstein figures things out.

Frau Einstein, who takes care of all of the mundane things for the professor, revealed the secret today. She told the reason for her emphatic "nein" to all movie proposals here. She said:

"In Berlin, he poses. It is his joy for it makes the poor children happy and he loves children."

PINCHOT BOARD SPURS JOB AGENCIES TO NEW EFFORTS

ADOPT FINAL LEGISLATIVE PROPOSALS

Father Cox Offers 'Back to Farm' Program; Building Projects Cited by Mackey

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Final recommendations for legislative action on the unemployment problem were adopted by the Pennsylvania committee on unemployment appointed by Gov.-elect Gifford Pinchot at a meeting here. All sub-committees, communits and county committees for emergency employment and relief were continued and urged to maintain their activities as long as the need exists.

Among the reports submitted were those of Mayor Harry A. Mackey detailing relief work, the construction projects here and a "back-to-the-farm" program for the jobless by the Rev. Dr. James R. Cox, pastor of St. Patrick's Church, Pittsburgh.

Mayor Mackey told the committee new municipal construction totaling $43,630,669 is under way or at the starting point.

In citing relief measures undertaken by city agencies, Mayor Mackey said further consideration was necessary. He reported:

"The appropriation of $150,000 made recently to the Welfare Department, will be exhausted by the end of the month. Mrs. Lena M. Roberts, chief of the Bureau of Personal Assistance, tells me 4,168 families daily are appealing to the bureau for relief.

"It was my thought and I so expressed myself in my budget measure that $75,000 a month should be available this year."

PUBLISHERS TO DEBATE TRADE PROBLEMS

Two Forums on Business Topics Listed at Meeting Of State Newspapermen

Business problems facing newspaper publishers were the leading topics before the closing sessions today of the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers' Association convention in the William Penn Hotel.

Two forums were being held during the morning. Speakers before the section of daily newspaper publishers were to be Dwight H. Fee and B. W. Bloom, both of Pittsburgh, and A. R. Mechener, Harrisburg. Appearing before the weekly publication section were to be Miss Helen V. Goettler, of Souderton, only woman executive appearing as a convention speaker; Walter L. Sanborn, Lansdale, and W. Clement Moore and J. W. Shaw, of New York.

Business discussions were being held on operation costs, advertising, circulation and mailing problems. Associated Press and United Press members were to attend luncheons arranged by the wire services.

The election of officers will close the general business session during the afternoon. Members will discuss legislative and other committee reports and act on resolutions.

The annual banquet will end convention activities. Marlen E. Pew, editor of Editor and Publisher, New York, as the principal speaker, will discuss "Public Service Journalism." Dr. Philip Thomas, research engineer of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, will give an illustrated address on "Television and Its Relation to Newspapers." The demonstration, referred to as an "electric flea" circus, will emphasize electrons and place them through various performances. D. N. Slep, of Altoona, retiring president, will be toastmaster.

DAVIS MUM ON NYE'S THREAT

Senator Reed, His Colleague, Doubts Unseating Action Will Meet With Success

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Notice by Senator Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota, of his intention to offer a resolution declaring the seat of Senator James J. Davis, of Pittsburgh, vacant today threatened to precipitate another violent political discussion that easily may lead to an extra session of Congress.

The North Dakota senator, a progressive Republican, declared he would sponsor such a revolution if similar action is not initiated by some other member of the Senate campaign funds investigating committee, of which he is chairman.

REED DOUBTS SUCCESS

Informed of the development, which brought alarm to the ranks of administration forces seeking to avoid an extra session, Senator Davis withheld comment, but Senator David A. Reed, of Pittsburgh, remarked crisply:

"There is certainly no basis for such an action and I do not think the resolution will pass."

With Congress adjourning by constitutional limitation less than two months hence, March 4, the proposed Nye resolution could be blocked by an individually conducted filibuster, if necessary, and the inference left was that there would be more than one ready to resort to that course.

FUND BILLS THREATENED

Fears of an extra session are based on the possibility of important departmental appropriation bills becoming involved in the legislative jam that would be sure to follow. Resulting in the date of adjournment arriving with several unpassed.

Senator Nye based his announcement on the revelations of his investigating committee, which, he says, will show that a fund of approximately $1,200,000 was spent in the Pennsylvania primary and general election which elected Senator Davis. He asserted that "consistency" demanded an effort to have Davis ousted.

It will be some time after next Wednesday, if then, that the hostile move against Davis will be made, Nye's committee agents, in Pennsylvania for some weeks past, have all returned and are compiling reports on contributions and expenditures by various campaign committees in the primary and general election campaigns.

MARTIN VISITS ARMSTRONG

Now that County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong has sent James F. Malone a congratulatory telegram on his appointment to Gov.-elect Gifford Pinchot's cabinet, the political rialto is settled down for a quiet week-end.

The Republican state chairman on his way to his Washington, Pa., home, paid a call on County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong yesterday.

No politics were discussed in the visit according to Armstrong who said last night:

"Gen. Martin had a lot of nice things to say about my boy (Senator Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr.,) and the way he got along his first time in the Senate."

PINCHOT HOME, DRAFTS SPEECH

HARRISBURG, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Having announced selection of John L. Hanna, of Franklin, Venango County, as secretary of welfare, Gov.-elect Gifford Pinchot today was at his home in Milford, prepared to devote the week-end to completion of his inaugural address.

Pinchot conferred here yesterday with George W. Woodruff, of Philadelphia, attorney general during his previous administration, and recently selected as special counsel in utility regulation a new post in the cabinet.

Pinchot announced he planned to return Monday for continuation of his conferences. Appointment of Hanna was the seventh in the new cabinet and leaves eight posts undecided. Those named are:

Secretary of highways, Samuel S. Lewis, York; attorney general, William A. Schnader, Philadelphia; secretary of revenue, Dr. Clyde L. King, Philadelphia; secretary of property and supplies, James F. Malone, Pittsburgh; secretary of welfare, John L. Hanna, Franklin; secretary to the Governor, P. S. Stahlnecker, and special counsel in public utility regulation, George W. Woodruff.

appointee was sworn into office. It was stated on reliable authority the President would ignore all requests, but might delay a decision to bolster his refusal with an opinion from the Attorney General.

STRANGE IMPASSE

If the President defies the Senate, he will provoke one of the strangest impasses in American history. It is barely possible the Senate may proceed even without the papers, and reject the three appointees. The government disbursing office then must decide if the commissioners may drew salaries. If he should refuse to pay them, they will be automatically ousted. Later in the year, the Senate will get an opportunity to prohibit their salaries when it acts upon the independent offices appropriation bill, thus ousting them in the fiscal year, beginning July 1.

DELICATE POSITION

The President's defiance will also bring the charge he is "friendly to the power trust," and approves the commission's order in dismissing Russell and King. He will furnish also an issue to the various groups opposing him on the water power issue—and he will raise a unique constitutional issue in refusing to co-operate with the Senate in its constitutional power of considering confirmations according to its own rules.

If the President returns the nominations, he virtually abandons the three new commissioners to their fate at the hands of an unfriendly Senate.

2 BANK ROBBERS START TERMS

Two young confessed Perry State Bank bandits today—within a month after perpetration of the holdup—began sentences of from 30 to 60 years in Western Penitentiary.

Leaving the bright sunlight of the outdoors, Harry Hoover, 22, and Edward Pishney, 19, were led by deputy sheriffs within the gray walls from which they may not emerge until both are old men.

They left the county jail guarded by a squad in charge of Deputy Sheriff Silver Braun. They appeared in good humor. Two other prisoners accompanied them. One advised Pishney to "duck" when he saw newspaper photographers, but Pishney did not heed.

They pleaded guilty Monday to the Perry Bank holdup of December 13, in which six robbers obtained $5,000, part of which was received. Two other admitted members of the gang are in custody awaiting arraignment. Two of the six have not been apprehended.

ENGINEER DIES AFTER SHOCK

Adolph Redeman, 52, of 3830 Wilksboro avenue, night engineer in the Bellefield Dwellings, Bellefield and Center avenues, was killed this morning when his trouser leg was caught in the shaft of a generator in the basement of the apartment building. He was shocked into unconsciousness and lacerated by the revolving shaft. William Blythe, a clerk, hearing his cries, shut off the power. Dr. W. O. Sherman, of the building, aided police of Oakland Station with an inhalator in a fruitless effort to revive him.

Death was blamed on the electrical shock and loss of blood.

Many Publishers at Meet Started as Newsboys And Reporters

Publishers who have risen from newsboys, reporters who have become publishers and other owners who have spread their interests to banking and civic progress of their cities are common among members attending the annual Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers' Association convention in the William Penn Hotel.

Western Pennsylvania possesses many such examples. Harry R. Pore, publisher of the Monessen Daily Independent, stepped from college into Monessen when the town was 3 years old. Founding the paper, Pore has watched it grow with the city through 28 years, supporting civic improvements and adding real estate and banking interests to his activities. He is a director of the Peoples National Bank and Trust Company.

Mr. Pore

Once a reporter on Pittsburgh papers, C. M. Bomberger, publisher of the Jeannette News-Dispatch, and vice president of the Jeannette Savings and Trust Company, spent three years with the News, and in 1914 combined it with the Dispatch.

Mr. Bomberger

Grover W. Boyd founded the Donora Herald. In 1914 he promoted a consolidation with the America, a weekly paper established in 1900, and with Will H. Watson has since conducted the Herald-America.

Mr. Boyd

With Greensburg as his home city, E. A. Sweeney saw opportunity, and today is publisher of the Greensburg Tribune-Review. He is also a director of the Merchants Trust Company, past president of the newspaper association and chairman of the organization's State College School of Journalism committee. He promoted the consolidation of three papers in 1924, the Review, the Tribune and the Record.

Mr. Sweeney

Herbert Brauff, publisher of the Vandergrift News, also was a Pittsburgh reporter before he stepped into Altoona and, after making a record as business manager there, turned his interests to the Westmoreland County town. He took over the Vandergrift News six months after it had become a daily publication. One of the youngest business managers attending the convention is John T. Robinson, of the Monongahela Daily Republican and Waynesburg Democrat. Graduating from State College in 1927, he joined with his father, R. H. Robinson, conducting the two publications.

GREENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 10.—H. W. Smith, of Hunker, driver of an automobile which struck and fatally injured Thelma Littlejohn, 6, of Greensburg, was exonerated of blame by a coroner's jury here. The child ran in front of Smith's car as she left a school bus, December 31, witnesses said.

Six Hurt in Penal Colony Earthquake

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Six inmates of the Tres Marias Penal Colony Islands off the West Coast of Mexico were injured, considerable damage done, and the prisoners thrown into a high state of panic yesterday by severe earthquakes that rocked the islands.

The disturbances occurred between 1 and 4 a. m. Twenty-seven distinct temblors were felt. A severe storm raged at the time. Many large fish were thrown onto the beach and killed.

6 Held in $100,000 Chicken Hijacking

WHEATON, Ill., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Six men who, authorities said, stole chickens valued at $100,000 after hijacking more than 50 trucks, were under arrest today. A Brooklyn (Iowa) farmer, hitch-hiking homeward after being robbed of his truck and 35 crates of chickens, noticed the machine parked in a farmyard west of Chicago and notified the authorities, who conducted a series of raids.

Coolidge Urges States' Lawmakers to Face Facts

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 10.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

State legislatures are now in session. Almost as much as the Congress, they will affect the public welfare. They should face all facts. That will be difficult. It is axiomatic that half the world does not know how the other half lives. But state legislatures are fresh from the people. They know the conditions of their own neighborhoods much better than Congressmen know them.

Calvin Coolidge

Some people are suffering from lack of work, some from lack of water, many more from lack of wisdom. These facts have been emphasized all out of proportion to their importance. Other facts of abundant supplies of food, raw materials, credit, productive capacity and the ability of a free people to take care of themselves when necessary are being almost entirely ignored.

Cities and towns are responsible for relief. Give them all needed authority to raise and expend their own money for that purpose. That and local charity will be sufficient. Recall the principle of President Cleveland that it is the business of the people to support the government, not of the government to support the people. We can supply enough of our own lack of wisdom. We do not need to increase it by unwise legislation.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

JUDGE LINDSEY TALKS ON COMPANIONATE MARRIAGE HERE

HURLS BARBS AT CLERGY FOES

More Divorces Per Marriage In U. S. Than Russia, New Laws Needed, He Says

Former Judge Ben Lindsey stood silent for a moment while the audience sat, hushed, ready to hear the message of this "fearless radical," this advocate of companionate marriage.

"Modern marriage is companionate marriage. The kind of marriage being daily performed by the Rev. Dr. John Ray Ewers, the Rev. Dr. Percival H. Barker and others."

NAMES PASTORS

He read their names from a list of pastors who told the Sun-Telegraph yesterday they would not attend the lecture.

"I want to legalize modern marriage. I want to legalize birth control, already practiced; make divorce more reasonable; provide sex education, now bootlegged. I do not advocate free love. I do not advocate trial marriage."

Judge Lindsey quoted Dr. Ewers as saying Russia is unsuccessfully trying companionate marriage. The Judge denied that Russia practiced companionate marriage, said he thought Russia's system of easy divorce would not work well in the United States.

CITES RUSSIAN DIVORCES

"But does Dr. Ewers know that out of every 1,000 marriages in Russia, 230 divorces come, while, in the United States, between 500 and 800 divorces result from each 1,000 marriages? Dr. Ewers may know about Russia, but I doubt that he knows about his own country."

In former times, the Judge said, before civilization dawned, a man could not marry until he proved his worth by killing two crocodiles. When the supply of crocodiles ran low, many sought a change. But the priests refused, saying it was the will of the gods that a man must kill two crocodiles before marrying, that the new must fit the old.

SCORES CHURCH RULES

That, he said, is what many modern churchmen are doing. Church rules that there be no divorce, no physical education and no work for women, do not fit today. He said:

"It is in the battle for change that we find obstructing us the powers of the state and church, the dog-in-the-manger attitude of the Dr. Ewers', who don't know what they are talking about."

The audience, responsive to the quiet, reasonable former judge when the fervor of his arguments shook him and his voice, was composed of "intellectuals," school teachers, married couples, college students, professional men. Few ministers, if any, could be picked out.

RAIDERS SEIZE 2 NEW LINGLE SUSPECTS

Pair Taken at Former Home Of Alleged Trigger Man; Brothers' Indictment Near

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—Raiding squads from the state's attorney's office today seized two men described as associates of Leo V. Brothers, St. Louis gunman identified as the murderer of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter.

The men were arrested in a raid on a South Side apartment hotel in which Brothers lived at the time Lingle was put on the "spot" by a blonde gunman. Identities of both men were kept secret.

Pat Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorney, led the raid and hurried the men away to the same hidden headquarters where he grilled Brothers for 18 days before the capture of the St. Louis man was announced.

RECORDS SEIZED

Roche seized hotel records showing the periods which Brothers and his alleged associates were residents of the hotel.

The St. Louis man will be indicted for Lingle's murder Monday, State's Attorney John A. Swanson promised today. This followed a successful attempt by the state yesterday to block the suspect's release on a habeas corpus writ.

The legal fight opened with the filing of a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in behalf of Mrs. Jessie Brothers Jessen, the suspect's mother. The writ was refused by Acting Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan.

Brothers was still under a close guard at an outlying hotel today.

FEAR ATTACK ON SUSPECT

Chief Justice Finnegan refused to have the prisoner brought to the court, and refused to allow attorneys to talk to him. Authorities admitted they fear an underworld attempt on Brothers' life.

Roche and other investigators of the reporter-racketter's murder are following meager evidence found in Lingle's bank records which point to the employers of the lone blonde assassin who fired a bullet into the reporter's brain last June 9.

That the killer was hired by a gambling and liquor gang Lingle is believed to have cheated in his dealings with the underworld has been ascertained, but the identity of those who actually hired the killer has not yet been ascertained, according to authorities.

WELFARE FUND ASKS CITY ACT FOR NEEDY

Crisis if Private Funds Run Out, Warning; Suggest Regular Appropriation

While City Council is debating as to how the $125,000 newly budgeted for relief is to be spent, the Welfare Fund of Pittsburgh, in a statement today, draws attention to the amount of relief work necessary in Allegheny County. The number of families needing immediate relief is a problem, the statement declares, adding that the question to the taxpayer, who also is the supporting contributor to private welfare agencies, is, whether relief should be administered from public funds or from contributed funds by private agencies. The report says:

CITY HELD RESPONSIBLE

"The private family agencies and the Welfare Fund itself, which finances the operation of what is probably the largest family agency in the city as well as a whole group of other organizations dealing with related problems of child care, health and character-building, believe that the time has come for the city to recognize and assume again, by degrees, its responsibility in the problem of material relief. And this not as a temporary measure in the face of emergency conditions alone, but as a permanent part of the public responsibility and the municipal budget.

"At present there are about 9,000 families registered with the city Department of Welfare, which have received, or are receiving assistance. Private agencies have done the investigating, planning and supervising in individual cases and drawn upon the relief fund for needed groceries, rent and clothing through the Department of Welfare. In addition to this, the agencies have been providing relief to a considerable number of families from their own funds.

WARNS OF BREAKDOWN

"If public relief should be abruptly discontinued to the 9,000 families referred to, as was threatened in December, when the first appropriation gave out, Pittsburgh would be faced with a crisis. Nine thousand families, added to the burden already being carried by the private agencies, would almost surely cause their breakdown and create a situation, the ill effects of which might entirely destroy the degree of sanity and intelligence with which Pittsburgh has thus far faced her relief problem."

GAS STATION BANDIT TRIO SOUGHT

County-Wide Search Made For Robbers Who Kidnaped Attendant in Aspinwall

County-wide search was being made by police today for three bandits who, after looting the service station of the Standard Oil Company at Lexington avenue and Freeport road, Aspinwall, kidnaped the attendant; later releasing him in Highland Park, last night.

The robbers drove into the station and when Guy Weaver, 24, of 214 Emerson avenue, Aspinwall, the attendant, stepped out to serve them, one of the thugs ordered him back into the office at the point of a revolver. Weaver was forced to open a safe from which more than $80 was taken.

The robbery early yesterday of the electrical appliances store of Robert H. Hunt, of 502 West Grant avenue, Duquesne, was frustrated by Mrs. Mary Harrington, and her sister, Miss Jane Culshaw, who live in an apartment over the store. The women's screams frightened the thieves away.

STORE ROBBED

Walter Sullivan, of 7148 Meade street, manager of a chain grocery at Denniston avenue and Marchand street, reported to police that an acquaintance whom he knew as Robert Johnson walked into the store and stole the day's receipts, amounting to $45, last night.

Merle K. Teare, 18, of Grove City, who was wounded by Postmaster Carl W. Heckert after he and another youth had broken into the Bakerstown postoffice, will probably be brought to Pittsburgh Monday.

Teare and his alleged accomplice, Donald Fleming, 19, also of Grove City, were captured Wednesday morning, a day after the postoffice robbery.

HELD IN ROBBERY

Held for court on a charge of highway robbery, John Green, 36, a Negro, of Hogans avenue, North Versailles Township, today was lodged in the county jail. Turtle Creek police testified Green had held up and robbed Emmett Spikes, 32, of Oakhill, near the Turtle Creek bridge recently.

Arrested in connection with the robbery of Pollack's Service Station, 229 Butler street, Etna, four youths were being held today in the Sharpsburg Police Station pending a hearing.

Police first arrested Earl Leach, 18, of Ann street, Etna, and Charles Shaffer, 21, of Cherry street, Etna, who implicated Deni Marcolay, 20, and Nicholas Szulinski, 19, both of Main street, Sharpsburg, who were apprehended later. Arresting officers said a .32 caliber revolver was found in the possession of Shaffer.

Herman C. Garris, of 800 Seventh street, New Kensington, was robbed of $10 and his automobile driver's card by two men who offered him a lift from Springdale to New Kensington early today. Garris was forced out of the car in the Freeport road, a mile from Springdale, he told New Kensington police. Both Garsaud and Draper can be confirmed again, but not even administration leaders deny Smith would be rejected.

SHIP RAMS TUG, 3 MISSING

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 10.—(INS.)—Three men were reported missing today and four others were suffering from exposure as a result of a crash between the Norwegian freighter Gisla and the tugboat Richmond off Hog Island, near here, last midnight.

The tug, a huge hole torn in her side, sank immediately. The Gisla dropped anchor and picked up the four men found floating in the water, but it is feared three other members of the tug's crew were drowned.

The freighter was proceeding up the Delaware River for this port when she rammed the Richmond. The impact was heard by employes of the Vacuum Oil Company at Paulsboro, N. J., a half-mile downstream.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 10.—(INS.)—The Belgian freighter Bolivier was aground in the Columbia River, 20 miles from Portland, Ore., according to radio advices received here early today. The ship was not believed to be in immediate danger.

Legion to Report Relief Work Progress

Progress of the campaign for relief of needy families in Castle Shannon will be reported at a meeting of Castle Shannon Post No. 490, American Legion, to be held Monday night in the borough municipal building. According to Commander George C. Dietrich, members of the post are collecting contributions of food, clothing and cash for distribution among the destitute families. Dr. L. Fletcher is assisting the commander in directing the campaign.

3rd Chicago Hoodlum Slain in Three Days

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—(INS.)—The bullet-riddled body of Anthony (Sherlock) Gasparino, 30, was discovered today on the southern outskirts of the city. He had been taken for the typical gangland ride and was the third hoodlum to be taken down the death trail in the last three days.

FRANKLIN, Pa., Jan. 10.—With 170 members enrolled, 60 during the three-day city-wide campaign, Franklin Post of the American Legion surpassed its quota in the state-wide roundup.

WEATHER POOR, WIDOW WAITS

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 10.—(INS.)—Dangerous weather conditions in the vicinity of the Azores continued today to prevent Mrs. Beryl Hart and William S. MacLaren from attempting to complete the second leg of their projected "pay-load" flight to Paris.

They arrived here from Norfolk, Va., Wednesday in their monoplane Tradewind, and will continue from here to the Azores and Paris.

They rested throughout the day to be ready for a start.

ITALIANS SET TO RESUME HOP

NATAL, Brazil, Jan. 10.—(INS.)—With 12 planes once more lined up in formation in the harbor here, Gen. Balo Italo, of Italy, and his companion fliers were ready again today to resume their flight to Bahia and Rio de Janeiro.

The second of the two seaplanes forced down near the penal island of Farnendo do Noronha in an ensemble flight from Bolama in Portuguese Guinea was towed into port here by one of the Italian cruisers stationed along the ocean route of the fliers.

Both of the machines forced down off the Brazilian coast were supply ships which accompanied the main squadron to Bolama from the starting point at Orbetello, Italy. Originally, it was planned that they should remain at Bolama, but both were ordered to attempt the flight to Natal after two of the main squadron crashed at the takeoff, resulting in the death of five aviators.

Firemen Quench Blaze in Shed

A still alarm early today brought members of No. 20 Engine Company to the rear of 163 Leaside drive, East End, to extinguish a fire in a small shed on the property. The loss was small and the cause of the fire was undetermined.

CUBA REPORTED IN OPEN REVOLT

HAVANA, Jan. 10—(INS.)—Unconfirmed reports current here indicated today that Eastern Cuba was experiencing open rebellion, with the government invoking sharp measures to curb the outbreaks.

The reactionary movement, marked by riots and troop defections, was said to have begun yesterday morning in the provinces of Camaguey and Oriente. Orders were believed to have been issued to Naval Commander Oscar Fernandez Quevedo to keep a close lookout on the eastern coast for schooners loaded with ammunition and guns, reported en route to Cuba.

It was understood here that yesterday's unexpected suspension of all Spanish language newspapers and one anti-government English publication was ordered to prevent central and western sections of the island from learning of the revolutionary movement rumored afoot on the east end.

Work in Return For Relief Asked

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Jan. 10.—More than 500 persons in Johnstown, who have been given relief by the emergency relief committee, must work hereafter for the food and clothing they receive, officials of the committee said. Those accorded relief will be asked to assist in community enterprises.

Woman Sues City In Property Loss

Mrs. Lena Balena, 460 Williams street, Mt. Washington, charges that two properties owned by her were damaged $35,000 because of improper drainage, in a suite she filed in Common Pleas Court against the city through Attorney M. A. Musmano. Her houses are at 460 and 462 Williams street. She claims improper drainage allowed storm water to flow over the property, resulting in the houses being moved from their foundations, porches destroyed and walks cracked.

hoped for reason why the Americans were kept as an individual fighting unit in the forthcoming Pershing Memoirs. What actually went on behind those tightly-closed doors has heretofore been untold and at last we may learn who really won the war."

WILL BE INSTRUCTIVE

Miles Loveland, Corporal Company B, 58th Infantry, Fourth Division; gassed in Argonne forest; now a patient in U. S. Marine Hospital, Lawrenceville:

"In my opinion the Pershing Memoirs should furnish some real interesting reading and the true facts of the great war. Every citizen who reads Pershing's work will learn how war is conducted. It will be a great experience and certainly much safer than actual combat."

Jacob R. Shulgold, lieutenant, 313th and 315th Machine Gun Battalions, 80th Division:

"The thrill that I experience awaiting the true history of the part played by the American soldiers in France during the late war can only be surpassed by the actual reading of the memoirs of that peerless leader, Gen. John J. Pershing. If the truth is ever to be known, Gen. Pershing will enlighten the world kith his written revelations in this last war to end war."

SHERIFF INTERESTED

"As one of several millions of America's sons who served under the leadership of 'Black Jack' Pershing in three major engagements in France, I naturally look forward with more than a passing interest to the reading of Gen. Pershing's story of America's participation in the World War.

"Since the close of the war I have read almost everything that any of the leaders, both on the side of the Allies and those who opposed us, have written. Now that the chance has come to me and all of us who served in the lines and behind the lines, to read the words that have been written by the pen of this wonderful leader is certainly a consummation devoutly to be wished for and appreciated."

Col. Eric Fisher Wood, commander One Hundred Seventh Field Artillery and military attache with French:

"The ex-soldiers of the American Expeditionary Force, await with the keenest interest the publication of the biographical account of their former commander-in-chief, Gen. Pershing. They await and hope for the true 'inside' explanation of many happenings and events which were and still are inexplicable to them."

MONUMENT TO PROWESS

John H. Shenkel, major, Company B, One Hundred Eleventh Infantry, and platoon commander in Twenty-eighth Division first engagement in France:

"I look forward to reading Gen. Pershing's articles with keen anticipation. I feel certain that our military leader's memoirs not only will give a true and correct account of the happenings in France, but will serve as a monument to the prowess of the United States Army."

Clergy, Laymen in Beatty Meeting Discuss World Retreat Movement

By EDWARD PRENDERGAST, Staff Correspondent.

BEATTY, Pa., Jan. 10.—Two conferences in which the principal discussions evolved around the objectives of the retreat movement and its world-wide expansion were held today in St. Vincent Archabbey here. Attending the one were leading bishops, priests and monks of various orders of the Catholic church. At the other lay delegates, more than 150 from 20 states, discussed the problem as it related to them.

Msgr. A. Meuwese, vicar general of the diocese of Harrisburg, presided at the one and B. A. Seymour, Detroit manufacturer, at the other. Papers were read by the Rev. Nilus McAllister, C. P., of West Springfield, Mass., and John A. Farley, of Baltimore.

Bishop Hugh C. Boyle opened the conference in the archabbey hall yesterday afternoon with an address of welcome. Afternoon and night sessions followed.

The Rev. Sigismund Cratz, O. M. Cap., superior of the Toner Institute, Pittsburgh, was the only speaker at the night session. He spoke of the common man "to whom the future belongs," saying:

"The scepter has passed to the hand of the working man. The disturbances we are witnessing today in Russia and in India are but the travail of the new system now aborning in lands where autocracy has long held sway. This is the age of the plain man's rule. The march of his cohorts will be halted by no power on earth.

"Empires are tottering, kings are trembling. Mother Church is rejoicing. Christ was the friend of the plain man. He was born among the shepherds and plied the trade of the carpenter."

POPE DEFENDED LABOR

Father Sigismund pointed out that it was Pope Leo XIII who, when capitalism began exploiting the poor man for selfish purposes, raised his voice in defense of the plain man, and by his encyclical on labor blazed the way for every amelioration which has come to the working man of today.

Bishop Boyle and Bishop Gerald O'Hara, of Philadelphia, the youngest bishop in the country, and Bishop John Mark Gannon, of Erie, spoke during the afternoon, as did Archabbot Alfred Koch, O. S. B., head of the archabbey.

The history of the retreat movement, its beginning in Philadelphia and its spread over the United States in almost a decade, formed the theme of Bishop O'Hara's talk. He said that during the past year 24,000 laymen made retreats in 328 houses. This retreat movement in Australia, adult protective measure, the period of penitence and consideration of the spiritual, formed a bulwark against the deluge of immorality of the pre-war and post-war periods, he said.

PREDICTS WORLD MOVEMENT

Archabbot Alfred discussed the mission of the retreat movement, how its American growth was only a beginning. He predicted a worldwide movement, and called upon all Catholic men, all men of Christian belief, to carry the message of the spiritual abroad. Discussing the retreat and its provisions, the three-day period of rest and meditation, he said:

"By helping establish the retreat house, a haven of spiritual rest, you are helping to solve one of the greatest problems of the day. You are giving men the opportunity of reflecting on God and their spiritual life and future. It is the greatest means of counteracting the materialistic tendencies of the age. It is both commendable and necessary to the development of the church."

Chairman William A. Ryan, of Pittsburgh, read letters from various bishops who, unable to attend, sent their best wishes. Bishop O'Hara expressed the congratulations of Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, of Philadelphia, and William Cardinal O'Connell, of Boston, wrote a message to the group. Bishop Boyle read a letter of commendation from Pope Pius XI.

Archabbot Alfred's address on the extension of the retreat movement internationally was brought out further by the attendance at the conference of two Franciscan friars from Ireland, the Rev. Sylvester O'Brien and the Rev. Bernard Nolan. The pair, after a visit to a number of American retreat houses, will inaugurate the retreat movement in Australia.

KERR DRY NOTE SENT CHURCHES

The Rev. Dr. Hugh Thompson Kerr, moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly, and pastor of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church, presented a message in connection with the support of prohibition at the executive session of the administration committee of the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education, which met in Philadelphia.

Dr. Kerr, as president of that board, prepared the message in defense of prohibition, which was adopted unanimously by the administrative committee.

The Committe authorized Director J. Harwood Barnett, of the board's department of Moral Welfare, to transmit copies of the message to all the 10,000 churches of the denomination in every state of the Union, as a guidance for the membership and for the education of the 1,800,000 Sunday School pupils on the Presbyterian rolls.

The official message concluded with a renewed dedication of the entire membership of the Presbyterian church to a program of education "which will make America the most temperate and the most law-observing nation in the world."

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Twentieth Century Club Members to Give Ball Evening of Jan. 21

There is always added momentum to social affairs just after the first of the year. Folks always seem to turn over a leaf with a resolution to make the new year more gay and interesting than ever before. And today I have some very exciting news to tell you. The members of the Twentieth Century Club are planning to give a ball the evening of Wednesday, January 21, in the gorgeous auditorium of the clubhouse. The affair will be one of the most brilliant of the season.

Many of the committee chairmen have been appointed, with Mrs. John A. Murtland as chairman of the ball, and Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., as general chairman. Mrs. John W. Lawrence has been chosen as chairman of music and of the floor committee; Mrs. Thomas Eddy, chairman of tickets; Mrs. Alexander Laughlin, decorations. And they will be assisted by Mrs. R. B. Mellon and Mrs. William McClay Hall. Later I will have more news of committees to tell you.

Next week a number of entertainments will be given for a January bride-to-be. Ann Blakely Watt, daughter of the Robert Pitcairn Watts, of Dennistoun avenue, who'll marry William H. Robinson, Jr., son of William H. Robinson, of Beechwood boulevard, on January 20.

Many Fetes

On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. John N. Marshall will give a tea in her home, Beechwood boulevard, and on Thursday Mrs. Frank G. Allen, of Norwood, Mass., who is the guest of her father and mother, the Thomas Wallaces, will entertain with a luncheon in the Twentieth Century Club, honoring Ann. On Friday Mrs. A. H. Burchfield, Jr., will give a luncheon in her home.

* * *

Another January bride-to-be who is being much feted is Anne Douglas Stewart, daughter of Mrs. Douglas Stewart, of Fifth avenue, whose marriage to John E. McKelvy, son of Mrs. John M. McKelvy, of Fifth avenue, will take place a week from today at 5 o'clock in the Stewart home.

Notable Parties

Laura Evans will give a tea Friday afternoon in her home, Beechwood boulevard, and Mr. and Mrs. George Armstrong Kelly, III, brother-in-law and sister of the bride-elect, will give the rehearsal dinner in the Pittsburgh Golf Club. The Reginald G. Quailes and George Pearson Rhodes, Jr., will entertain with a wedding breakfast Saturday, a week from today, in the home of the George Pearson Rhodeses, Wilkins avenue.

The annual dinner of the Rolling Rock Hunt honoring Richard King Mellon, master of fox hounds, will be held this year on January 31 in the Rolling Rock Club, Ligonier, instead of in the Pittsburgh Golf Club. Dancing will follow the dinner.

* * *

Now I want to talk about the new officers of the Federation of Girls' School Societies, which met yesterday at a tea in the home of Mrs. Maitland Alexander.

Schools Election

Mrs. George Singer Ebbert, of the Farmington Society, will again be president of the Federation. Marjorie Kimball, of Dobbs Ferry, is first vice president; Mrs. Herbert A. May, of Mt. Vernon, second vice president; Ellen McClay, of Spence, third vice president; Priscilla Barnes, of Finch, fourth vice president.

Mrs. William A. Duckham, of Ogontz, was elected corresponding secretary; Mrs. William J. Powell, of Winchester, recording secretary; Mrs. Theodore F. Smith, of Miss Sayward's School, treasurer; Jane McEldowney, of Rosemary, assistant treasurer; Mrs. James I. Marsh, Jr., of Dobbs Ferry, chairman of the house committee, and Mrs. D. N. Carlin, of National Park Seminary, assistant chairman of the house committee.

Concerts, theaters and benefits will hold the attention of the social world during the coming weeks, though, of course, throughout the month weddings will dominate.

Many society folks will again attend a Cinema Guild production. Tomorrow night the Guild will present Lila Dimita in a French film, and, of course, the scene of the event will be the Hotel Schenley ballroom. A month from tomorrow night a Spanish film will interest Guild members.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Simons, of Royal Oak, Mich., formerly of West View, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Emily June Simons, to Norman S. Chamberlain, also of Royal Oak, which took place on December 30, in Toledo, O. The bride is a niece of Mrs. W. Dale Simons, of Berringer place, Ben Avon.

Married In Toledo

Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Smith, of Brentwood, formerly of the East End, announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Cleo B. Smith, at a bridge luncheon yesterday, to Dr. George Van Pidball, of Houston, Pa., son of Mr. and Mrs. George Pidball, of Brownsville. The affair was given in the Smith home. No date was named for the wedding.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Coulson, of Hermitage avenue, Homewood, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Loretta Dolores Coulson, to William A. Fullerton, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Fullerton, of the East End.

THURSTON AT SYNAGOGUE

Howard Thurston, magician, will tomorrow night address the congregation of the Tree of Life Synagogue. His subject will be "The Religion of a Magician." Thurston was invited to speak from the pulpit of the synagogue by Rabbi Herman Hailperin, who is an amateur magician and a member of the Society of American Magicians. He is a personal friend of Thurston, who is an officer of the society.

Senator Seeks Law To Balk Postmaster

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Senator McKellar (Dem.), Tennessee, is running a race with the Interstate Commerce Commission to head off by legislation a commission decision on Postmaster General Brown's application for an increase in parcel post rates. This is designed to raise about $8,000,000 more in federal revenues.

The Tennesseean has a bill pending to repeal the Postmaster General's authority to make such a request. The measure is still before the Senate Postoffice Committee, but he says a poll of that group shows enough support to report it out.

Physicians Elect In Beaver County

'Sacrament,' Subject In Science Churches

"Sacrament" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon to be read tomorrow in all Christian Science churches. The golden text will be "The bread of God is He which cometh down from heaven and giveth life unto the world."

RITES MONDAY FOR EDUCATOR

The Rev. Michael Kelly, head of the English Department at Duquesne University, will preach the sermon at funeral services for the Rev. Henry J. McDermott, C. S. Sp., 65, former vice president and registrar of Duquesne University, who died yesterday at Ferndale, Norwalk, Conn. The services will be held Monday at 10 a. m. Burial will be at Ferndale, where Father McDermott had been superior of the Holy Ghost Seminary since 1928.

Father McDermott was born in Ireland and graduated from Blackrock College and the University of Dublin. He was ordained in 1890 at the Holy Ghost Seminary in Chevilly, near Paris, and was assigned to the Holy Ghost College, now Duquesne University, in Pittsburgh. From 1902 until 1928 he was vice president and registrar of Duquesne. While there he was professor of Latin and English in the College of Arts, and acted as dean of discipline.

Evangelistic services at the Beechview Christian Church, Broadway and Shiras avenue, Beechview, will be continued throughout the coming week. C. C. Crawford, evangelist, in charge is being assisted by the Rev. Dr. F. J. Stinson, pastor of the church. Special musical numbers will be furnished by Mrs. Clara Thomas. At the morning service the subject will be "The Word Power of God," and at the evening service the subject will be "The New Birth."

Typothetae to Hear Woman Judge Speak

Judge Sarah M. Soffell will be the principal speaker Saturday evening at a dinner dance to be given by the Typothetae of the Pittsburgh District at the Hotel Schenley. The affair is being held in commemoration of the birthday of Benjamin Franklin, the pioneer printer of America.

Robert F. Haywang has been named general chairman, assisted by William P. Gregg, G. J. Coullie and Thomas E. Griffin.

Nowell to Address Y.M. & W.H.A. Here

"God Looks at Pittsburgh" will be the subject of an address by Gilbert Nowell, engineer, pastor and former state chairman of the Pennsylvania Civil Liberties Union, before the Open Forum of the Y. M. & W. H. A. Tuesday evening. He will discuss a number of controversial issues which have divided Pittsburgh.

SEEK TO SAVE CHURCH, HOME

STEUBENVILLE, O., Jan. 10.—Dr. Frank MacDaniel, field secretary of the Methodist Episcopal Board of Missions, is here to assist a citizens' committee in a campaign to save a church and a widow's home.

The Simpson Methodist Episcopal Church is up for sheriff's sale on a mortgage foreclosure. The home of Mrs. Ambrose Kent, a widow, mother of three children, is involved because her husband had advanced the church $4,500 for church repairs, taking a second mortgage on the church property and raising the money by mortgaging his own home. Citizens are being asked to contribute to a fund to clear the church title and repay the widow.

RECONCILIATION WEEK AT ARMY

"Reconciliation Week" will be observed as part of the Pentecostal Campaign of the Salvation Army, and the theme of "Reconciliation" will underlie all topics tomorrow at the headquarters, 425 Second avenue. Adjt. George Brooks will speak at both services tomorrow. "A Miracle in a Pool" will be the Sunday School lesson at 2 p. m., while "Ready for Anything" will be discussed at the Young People's Legion at 6 p. m.

Auto Show Held Aid to Industry

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(INS.)—The thirty-first annual national automobile show will close tonight after eight days. Exact attendance figures have not been announced, but it was said no records were broken, although exhibitors reported satisfactory orders. S. A. Miles, show manager, said:

"An industry pervaded with a great deal of uncertainty has been reassured and greatly increased confidence has been inspired by the large attendance."

Grotto Will Elect New Officers Jan. 22

The annual meeting and election of officers of Islam Grotto is set for Carnegie Library, North Side, January 22. Following the meeting the group will present its annual banquet, January 31, in honor of its retiring monarch, William G. Doench. J. Clifford Franz is general chairman.

Messiah Lutheran To Hear Rupp

The Rev. L. W. Rupp, of the Messiah Lutheran Church, Homestead Park, will speak tomorrow morning on "The Perfect Youth." At the evening service he will present an illustrated sermon on "The Age of Cathedrals."

Club Starts Mortgage Drive

As a tribute to Mrs. Ralph W. Johnston, whose term as president of the Congress of Clubs is drawing to a close, the members yesterday began a campaign to decrease the mortgage on the clubhouse. Each member and each affiliated club will be asked to contribute $5 to the fund. This came on motion from Mrs. F. H. Burdick, who has served on the finance committee for several years, and Mrs. William H. Francies suggested that every fifth year be known as mortgage year when every department and committee will devote all its energies towards the reduction of the mortgage. Mrs. Burdick, Mrs. Francies and Mrs. C. E. Coslowsky were appointed to take charge of the fund, which will close April 1.

The morning session of the quarterly meeting yesterday was devoted to informal talks by several of the board members. Mrs. S. B. Heppenstall speaking on causes of unemployment and Mrs. Florence Kinney on its cures. Mrs. L. F. Wentz cited the advantages of membership in the Congress and Mrs. George L. W. Price discussed "Youth Yesterday and Today." It is the grandparents who have changed, not youth, she said, and advised anyone who thinks youth is silly to get out her own old love letters and reread them.

In the afternoon a part of the Congress Choral acquitted itself most creditably in two Negro spirituals under Elsie Breese Mitchell's direction, and there were brief talks by Miss Gertrude Schermerhorn, of the Public Education and Child Labor Association, and Mrs. Evelyn Binns, of the Women's Trade Union, who are here in the interest of proposed legislation for women and children. Miss Schermerhorn's organization is seeking legislation compelling double compensation for children engaged in illegal occupations and a migratory child labor bill which will deal with the children employed in states other than their own and who go from one state to another regardless of the school term. In Philadelphia recently 5,000 employment certificates were issued to children when men and women were walking the streets looking for work, Miss Schermerhorn stated.

The Trade Union League, which Mrs. Binns represents, is working to bring out the bill that was introduced two years ago which will provide an eight-hour day and a five-and-a-half day week, which, she said, economists, sociologists and experience have proved is desirable and which is advocated as an unemployment cure. C. E. DeKock, of the American Express Company, added a European travel talk.

Announcements included the directors' card party for which the whole house will be open on January 29, a ways and means theater party at the Pitt, March 16, and a talk by Charles Brandon Booth, son of Gen. Maud Ballington Booth, at the welfare meeting, March 16.

TRICORNE PROVES FAVORITE IN THE NEW MILLINERY MODE

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Jan. 10.—Although the tricorne hasn't cornered the millinery mode, it has shaped itself into a prime favorite. This season it has been discovered and exploited by milliners for their more youthful clients, which means that it has arrived and is seen everywhere worn by young and the more mature. It has dignity and charm and can be worn with a rakish dash that is irresistable when worn by a young woman. It certainly is a flattering shape and yet it retains a smart tailored trimness that is most inviting and attractive. One doesn't have to be hot-headed to enjoy one of the new fur hats. On the contrary, these hats are snug but quite light and comfortable to wear. They look much warmer than they are and suggest a coziness that is most pleasant at this time of year. At first one saw the orthodox fur caps, but now milliners are using fur to make up hats in various styles and shapes, some of them quite intricate, all of them charming and eminently wearable.

CAMILLE ROGER is the milliner responsible for the very good-looking tricorne which has a most becoming line. It is made entirely of supple black felt and the turned back brim is very narrow in back.

farmers that fifteen million and give the city people the dice?

Konigswusterhausen station near Berlin claims that Russians are jamming the air. Well, the Konigswusterhausen certainly jammed this paragraph.

Well, our presidents have the edge on foreign executives. When our president picks out a country home it ain't in another country.

It reversed the legal chiropractics of Judge Clark, of New Jersey and environs.

This is in the famous case of Joe Doaks and the people. Seems that Joe had a recipe that wouldn't blow the roof off the house.

The last verdict is important. But only because it's the last.

Right now the Constitution begins to look like a permanent document.

Our judges seem to think a decision is like a pot of boiling jelly. Something to be set aside to cool off.

There is the case of the American lost in the Sahara Desert. He reached an oasis.

But it did him no good. He had become so used to New York speakeasies that he couldn't drink on the ground floor.

We wish our venerable and distinguished jurists would agree on something even if it's only the weather.

One judge meets another judge under reasonably favorable circumstances. He says: "Judge, what do you think of this, that or those?"

The second judge says, "You tell me what you think first. Then I'll think of something different."

As a matter of technical detail no judge can think of anything until he spends a week coughing into a big book.

We don't know what kind of books the judges use. Sometimes we think they must be furniture catalogues.

Anyway, their decisions help to while away the time until Babe Ruth gets into shape again.

We're getting so much legislation now that it takes 36 states to change an amendment.

And 28 states to change a tire.

Renaissance being a very pretty word, we are glad to say that polo is enjoying a renaissance in Pittsburgh. A polo league has been organized with four teams. George Vang, the contractor, seems to be the moving spirit in the renaissance. A year or so ago Mr. Vang bought a string of polo ponies. Then he set up a polo field on his estate, where he trains the ponies. He has his own team—the Vangs—and he is one of the riders. Another on his team is Edward Vose Babcock, Jr.

All that most of us know about polo is that it's played on horses and most of the spectators seem to wear raccoon coats. The important thing is the training of the ponies, according to Lieut. J. B. Benkert, of the Hunt Armory. If you are contemplating buying a polo pony, ask for one which can turn around swiftly, on a dime.

Hunt Armory is where the polo games will be played, every Saturday night, Saturday afternoons and Sundays, the armory is given over pretty much to civilians who like to ride horses. There are 80 horses at the armory and there are 50 or more Pittsburghers who ride there regularly. A dozen or more are women, and many of them are doing it for exercise.

For the recent snowstorms we are grateful because we wanted to see what a miniature golf course looked like in a snowstorm. For the benefit of those who shared a like curiosity we report that the courses do not look so good in a snowstorm.

The newspapers and the taxpayers applauded the appointment of John Egan to the bench, but we have no doubt that one or two of the judge's students grunted once or twice. As dean in Duquesne University's law school Judge Egan gained a reputation as an exacting master. His own forte is memory, and he made the boys and girls memorize some law line by line, word for word, even to the a's and the's. They say he knows the second book of Blackstone (real estate) as well as any other lawyer in the country.

Pat O'Malley, the Strip politician, is to be married soon, which means that he won't have so much time to spend on Senator Coyne's farm. The senator likes nothing better than to push a half dozen of his friends into his limousine and rush them out to the farm near Allison Park. When he gets them there he puts them to work. He tells them they need the exercise. He put Pat to labor once, but the attempt was futile. Pat was pitching hay from the top of a wagon to the barn when, without the least warning, he fell off the wagon. He hasn't pitched hay since.

WHAT CRITICS SAY ABOUT NEW PHOTOPLAY ATTRACTIONS

Studio Scouts on Lookout For New Acting Talent For Talk Screen

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 10.

Following up its campaign for fresh faces on the screen, Warner Brothers has appointed Ivan Simpson, veteran stage director, to coach the young people whom Rufus Le Maire expects to discover on scouting tour through schools and amateur dramatic societies.

Mr. Simpson is a person of more importance than you may imagine. He has been with George Arliss for many years, acting as stage director and as a performer of character roles. He also assisted with some of the fine touches that have gone into Arliss' pictures.

George Arliss

The assignment that Warners has given Mr. Simpson is quite a responsible one. While the new players will be tested for extra work, they also will receive free instruction in stagecraft and will be given the opportunity to demonstrate their ability in a series of one-act plays to be given every other Friday night on a studio stage. These performances will be a family affair, with all studio employes invited to come and bring their families.

Another duty of the apprentice actors will be to aid the scenario department when a snag is struck in a script. They will be given the dialogue to read, so that the lines can be tried out and all modifications made before the actual cast is put to work.

Warners is only one of several studios who are interested in seeking new material. Fox scouts have been working quietly for many months.

LATEST GOSSIP

Evelyn Brent's contract with Columbia has just been officially dissolved. Her husband, Harry Edwards, made a trip to New York to confer with Harry Cohen on the matter. Evelyn made one picture at Columbia. She had two more to go. . . . Lewis Ayres and Lola Lane continue to concentrate on each other. . . . Joan Crawford and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., get back here on January 15. . . . Sue Carol and Nick Stuart already have returned from Chicago. . . . 'THE ROYAL FAMILY' IN FULTON AND SHERIDAN

By MILDRED FILLMORE

The movie cameras have taken their shot at the Barrymores, as depicted in the stage play, "The Royal Family," and what a shot it is! It is clever travesty and sparkling comedy.

The screen version, which opened yesterday in both the Fulton and the Sheridan Square, is known as "The Royal Family of Broadway." But, with or without the additional "Broadway" tag, it is royal entertainment.

An entire family is the hero of this story. It is a family enmeshed in tradition and temperament, with temperament having the best of it. Everything, marriage and yes, even life itself, are incidents only. A career is all.

FAMILY IS SMALLER

The screen has taken liberties with the stage version. It has made the family smaller by two. It has elaborated on the scene settings. It permits the faded queen of the family to die in the theater, instead of in the big lounge chair at home.

Some of these "liberties" enhance the effectiveness of the play. But the demise in the theater doesn't carry the impressive drama that was attached to the death far from the bright lights in the stage version.

MR. MARCH, THE STAR

There is really lots of real drama in this picture. Much of it, though, is hidden by hilarious comedy.

The star of the film is Frederic March. As the family's Romeo "gone Hollywood," he does a grand portrayal. He's an acrobat, a clown and an actor, an actor all the way through. And in gesture, at least, he is a Barrymore.

Ina Claire and Henrietta Crosman have prominent roles. They are capable, if not always "complete." Other players include Mary Brian, Charles Starrett, Arnold Korff and Frank Conway.

Evelyn Brent.

'THE LOTTERY BRIDE' IS ALDINE BOOKING

By ROI SNYDER

Another one of those synthetic screen operettas is in the Aldine. Neither the valiant singing of John Garrick, nor of Robert Chisholm, remembered favorably here for his "Whip Song" in the light opera "Golden Dawn," nor the customary antics of Joe E. Brown and Zasu Pitts, can redeem a hopeless plot and indifferent tunes. Even Jeanette MacDonald can't help along a vehicle which creaks audibly.

Arthur Hammerstein, Rudolph Friml and Herbert Stothart conspired to produce this latest revenue. It is titled "The Lottery Bride."

In the film, the folks at Oslo, Norway, have just discovered the marathon dance craze. Joe E. Brown, as a wise-cracking orchestra leader, introduces it at a Norwegian cabaret, and Jeanette MacDonald, as heroine, attempts to win the prize and save her brother. He is threatened with arrest for helping himself to some bank funds.

Then her sweetheart, capably portrayed by John Garrick, misunderstands her actions and flees into the frozen vastness of the far north.

Now the poor girl offers herself as a picture bride and, via the paddle wheel, she is won by none other than her runaway sweetheart. But this doesn't end the film. It just begins some more situations.

Mr. Brown hasn't much to do and Zasu Pitts isn't her usual self.

EVELYN LAYE'S DRAMA, LEON ERROL'S FUN A-1 IN PENN

By GEORGE SEIBEL

We're used to wild extravagance in the advance publicity of screen dramas, and feel rewarded if they're 10 per cent of the advertised quality. For once, at the Penn, there's a picture 100 per cent par. "One Heavenly Night" is good, despite all adjectives and superlatives.

Louis Bromfield, a fine novelist, and Sidney Howard, a fine playwright, produced scenario and dialogue. So George Seibel we have a coherent plot with literary flavor.

Evelyn Laye is a charming comedienne with a lovely voice, and John Boles is a handsome hero who also sings well. They have some lyrics that ring like real music.

And there's Leon Errol, an irresistible clown, whose drunken scene in an art gallery is rich in laughter.

MERRY MASQUERADE

Evelyn Laye is a flower girl in the theater where a wild and wicked prima donna sets hearts aflame. The prima donna, dashingly played by Lilyan Tashman, is exiled to the country for having caused a riot among her admirers. She gets the flower girl to go in her place.

The gay young baron, who is also magistrate of the town of banishment, invites the fair exile to dinner, and a lively flirtation grows out of the mistaken identities. They sing—they almost kiss—she flees through a driving storm—he follows her to Budapest—and now they're presumably living happily forever after.

It's romance that isn't silly, and Errol adds comedy that's not disgusting. Rate: "One Heavenly Night" as A-1 in the Bradstreet of the talking pictures.

ALSO FINE STAGE SHOW

And besides there's a notably fine stage show. Emile Boreo sings French songs with wild and wicked winks, and gives great imitations of Chevalier and the divine Sarah. This Boreo is an artist in every grimace.

Coscia and Verdi are a musical team whose comedy is infectious. How Verdi's cello recites "Mary had a little lamb" will draw tears of laughter.

Pesetzki's symphony orchestra plays while real stars twinkle in the stage sky, and Dick Leibert takes his audience on a train ride over half of scenic America. But the most stirring thing aside from the musical romance was the views of the treason trial in the Soviet republic, with glimpses of patriotic mobs in Moscow streets.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

(Copyright, 1930, by Daily Mirror, Inc.)

Bombardment

(Showing what happens to a feller who accepts a week's engagement in the Palace Theater when he might have snubbed the offer and left well enough alone!)

"Dear Walter," writes Fred Allen, of "Three's a Crowd" (at the Selwyn Theater), "knowing that the depression would eventually force you back to your first love—vaudeville—good luck to you at the Palace. I'm not worrying. I sold my RKO stock months ago. Sincere condolences to Harry Richman. After spending a year in the company of Clara Bow—times are so bad that he is seen in public with you, sir. I hope you lay an egg so big that hens, for miles around, will be conscripted to hatch it."

"When you left vaudeville ten years ago—you were on number two. Now you are a successful columnist (so they say) and you still have to be a stooge for Harry Richman. If I remember well—it was only last year when you wrote the meanest column about him. Something tells me he promoted this booking for you to even matters. You dope!

"But what I started out to say was that when you were in vaudeville before the war you were on the deuce spot, and now you have to be Richman's stooge to get a better position on the bill. It proves that the country still is sound and that Winchell still is second in the hearts of his vaudeville admirers—if any.

"Oh, yes, that man you will see in the left-hand box at the Palace is not a heckler, Walter, so don't be alarmed. In fact, he is not a member of the audience at all. He is a plant. Ted Healy forgot to pay off and the poor guy is waiting for Healy to play the Palace again."

"After reading in Variety how much salary the Palace is paying you for your Palace date we now know what they meant when the said: 'Hoofer Prosperity.'"—Goldman-Sachs.

"Haw, Haw, Haw! Ho, Ho, Ho! I'll be there, all right. I knew I would have my revenge some day. Oh, boy!"—Rudy Vallee.

From the N. Y. Times: ". . . Mr. Winchell who opens there Jan. 10, was a vaudeville actor before he started newspaper work, but is said never to have played the Palace."

"On Saturday they'll find out why you never played it."—Gladys Glad.

"I suppose you've heard that Hellinger will open soon with Al Jolson—he'll need him, too!"—Eddie Cantor.

"I admire you for your courage on accepting the Palace engagement on three days' notice. They are the grandest audiences of them all, in spite of the theory that the Palace audiences are hard-boiled. Just tell them that you know me, Walter—and maybe they won't hiss loud."—Ruth Etting.

"Oh, if I only had a column!!!"—Ethel Barrymore.

"Sorry, I won't be able Saturday, Jan. 10, to catch your act with Harry Richman at the Palace. On second thought I'm not so sorry—I caught you at Loew's American in 1918. Oh, my!"—Marilyn Miller.

"How do you like your tomatoes, sweetheart?"—Mary Hellinger. (Look who's making fun!)

"I didn't know you wanted to commit suicide, little boy. Why didn't you tell me when you were in Miami?"—A. Capone.

"They tell me the reason you are going back to vaudeville for a week is that you miss the smell of bad notices."—Heywood Broun.

"How about paying for your life subscription?"—Variety. (It's in the mail twice!!!)

"I'll bet you don't show up."—Florenz Ziegfeld.

"Oh, my dear, my dear. Are you ill?"—Peggy Joyce.

"Well, I didn't think you had the guts, really. How about having me introduce you to the audience at the first matinee? I have a honey of an introduction: 'Winchell—loved by many, but despised by more.'"—Captain Irving O'Hay.

"I suppose you'll sing: 'Tearful Little Earful.'"—Victor Moore.

"Now I know what they meant when it was rumored you were going to be put on the spot. But have no fear, old man. If anyone throws an object that kills you, your crime will be solved soon enough. At least half the audience will be arrested on suspicion."—Commissioner Mulrooney.

"My best wishes for success to Richman."—Joe Cook.

"Dear Walter: I overheard this repartee at 46th St. and Broadway last night. One lay-off said to another lay-off: 'What'll we do to amuse ourselves next week?' and the other answered, 'Let's go to the Palace and watch Winchell get nervous!'"—Capt. Frank Hawks.

"I can't for the life of me figure out how you are going to do an act with Harry Richman and do your column at the same time. However, I'll be glad to fill a column for you about him."—Clara Bow.

"At first some of us thought that the reason you were booked at the Palace was to keep you in a theater all day and night so people could relax knowing where you were. Now, we don't feel so good—considering that nobody will be able to keep you from peeking through the Palace curtain's peep-hole."—Peaches Browning.

"Don't tell them what happened to me!"—Adele Astaire.

"Good luck, kid. If you see people walking out don't let that worry you. Be thankful that they are not walking toward you."—George M. Cohan.

"I hope your success is as big as your head!"—Mrs. Walter Winchell.

"And among other things the Palace audiences will never know until Saturday is THAT THE CHERRY SISTERS HAD A BROTHER!"—Editor's Note.

HERO 'SOCKS' HEROINE AND LOVE AWAKES IN STANLEY

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"Free Love" is the new talkie in the Stanley. It is a movie battle of the sexes. In one corner is Intuitive Introvert, representing the feminine contingent. In the other is Infantile Extrovert, representing the male of the species.

In plain language it is a combat between Genevieve Tobin, as a wants-to-go-places wife, and Conrad Nagel, as a wants-to-stay-at-home husband.

But don't blame us for the fancy designations. A psycho-analyzing fellow in the picture furnishes Genevieve with the big words and some big ideas for the paltry sum of $800.

Go live your life, he tells her. And she does, leaving Conrad to get so "stewed" that he goes around reciting Mr. Fields' "Little Boy Blue."

The picture's big punch comes near the finale. And it is a punch! Husband Nagel hands Wife Tobin a grand old right to the jaw. She's knocked out. But when she "wakes up" she discovers she loved him all the time.

The film is an adaptation of the Sidney Howard play, "Half Gods." It is sophisticated stuff. For the most part, it moves in drawing-room manner. It is cleverly handled and the cast is sufficient. Zasu Pitts puts in a classic comedy bit in her usual role of maid.

However, considering what Pa Pitt's censors generally consider unfit for the public eye, an episode near the film's beginning makes us think there has been some napping going on in that censoring room.

The best thing on the stage is the appearance of Don Bestor and his orchestra. This organization presents a highly entertaining musical display, presents it with a quiet, but impressive dignity. Several well conceived novelty numbers are included.

The stage revue is titled "Paintin' the Town." It offers a lot of Ed Lowry and a number of other featured entertainers, including the clarinet-clown, Boyd Senter, and the Four Co-eds, singers. Mr. Lowry does his share of clowning and again sings the "Song of the Fool." A blackface team appears on a scaffold and gets by with some sloppy slapstick.

NIXON TO STAGE PREMIERE OF NEW MUSICAL COMEDY

Following a week of darkness in the Nixon, with the exception of a Thursday evening performance by Ted Shawn and the Denishawn dancers, "America's Sweetheart," new musical comedy sponsored by Schwab and Mandel, comes to the stage of that theater for its premiere Monday, January 19.

Thurston closes the first-half of a two weeks' engagement in the Alvin with today's matinee and evening performances. The magician's daughter, Jane, singer, dancer and magician, has a larger part in this year's show than ever before.

"Bird In Hand," which recently was presented by a touring company in the Alvin, and was highly praised in reviews, will be given by the George Sharp Players in the Pitt next week.

The screen and stage vaudeville bill in the Harris changes today, with the presentation of Ben Lyon in "A Soldier's Plaything" as the photoplay feature.

Sunday midnight "Frivolities" opens for a week in the Academy, featuring Billy Fields and Violet Buckley.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

The World Takes a Worm At His Own Valuation

"I just wish some big Cave Man would come along and ask me for my pay check!" snorts Do-do, giving us a Look—

It's Dawn who has her dander up, Dawn, if you remember, was the Sweet, Big Hearted Young Wife, who, although her Hero was making $100 a week himself—and they were living off her folks — handed him her own modest wad every Saturday night . . . And then sat by the front window, watching him dash out to chat with some other girl while wifie wept, chewed her nails and wondered why she wasn't "appreciated."

We told her a lot about why. But Do-do thinks we didn't make it strong enough. So here she is with a few extra wallops.

"Dear Sally.—

"I want to hand you a medal for the way you stepped on that Weeping Willow, Dawn. The only trouble is you don't step hard enough.

Needs Smack

"What an awful blockhead she is. Oh dear me suz? Where-at's her head? I'd give anything to meet her! She'd know more about where it was all right, after I was done with her. It'd be that sore that she couldn't help it. She wants sympathy, does she? What she needs is a good crack with a brick, and would that I were near enough to give it to her!

"But then, she isn't the only one dumb enough to fall for that sort of a layout. I recently heard of a girl who was 'in love' with one of those bozos who just can't seem to keep a job. You know. You've seen 'em. Well, she was turning her pay check over to him, too. For him to gamble away on card games! And that's not all, either! The card playing was always in her apartment. And Lil Sadie would get a swift kick if she happened to fall asleep before fixing refreshments for the boy friend and his pals. Yep. It's true. I wouldn't believe it myself, if I hadn't got the story from a thoroughly reliable source. Ain't love grand?

Doesn't Approve

"I may be just an addled egg, but I simply can't get people like that! What is 'love' to such a person anyway? When I fall in love, believe you me, I have to have something besides a shrimp like that to fall for. Maybe I'm unnatural, but people have to have the ordinary qualities of independence, decency and fair play, before I can see anything in them to get all hot and bothered over. Why any girl in her right senses should want to register with any such human blight as Dawn's husband, or Sadie's friend, is by me.

"And I just wish some big Cave Man would come along and ask me for my pay check! I would just love to be married to one who would . . . and then be able to cry and sigh over his Rough Treatment!! Wouldn't it be Just Swell? I could sit by the window all evening, and cry my little eyes red . . . and then when he came in from his siesta with the other Girl Friends, I could meet him with a sopping wet hanky, hang my arms around his neck and cry all over his new red tie. Then, of course, he'd throw me aside, and walk on me a few times . . . Men love weeps so! . . . and oh, Gosh! Wouldn't I have the grandest orgy of suffering? Whoops, my dear!

"This Dawn is dumb. Her family is dumber. And as for that husband—words fail me. . . . All except the kind you couldn't print! And I don't think even they'd be strong enough!

"Imagine him living off her folks, and he makes $100 a week! And she stands for it and hands him more! Of all the spineless, brainless, insipid saps! And she wonders why he doesn't appreciate her! Well, I'd think he'd kill her! Except that he's probably a smart guy, and realizes when he has a Good Thing.

"This nit-wit ought to be ashamed of herself for letting the big cheese get away with such a graft. He might act human if he found he had to stand on his feet for a change . . . and it's a cinch he'd have a little respect for her at least.

Pay for Fear

"Wake up, Dawn! Get next to yourself, and hand him a few cracks on the nose, before the rest of the male mockers see what he's getting away with, and start preying on some other poor, unsuspecting little dirl who hasn't backbone enough to stick up for her rights.

"Phooey! I feel better, now I've got that off my chest. I could say a lot more, but what's the use? It would probably be just wasted effort. You can't penetrate a head like that anyway. I often wonder if such people don't want to be abused.

"DO-DO."

Yep. You're right, ole dear. There are people in the world, who actually enjoy misery! There is some queer, twisted kink in their natures, that makes them actually want to be mistreated.

But there are others who are just plain scared. They don't dare stand up to other people, for fear they'll offend them. For fear they'll lose what they value so much . . . the attention—the love—of the folks they allow to walk on them.

And they pay for their fear bitterly and terribly, because no one respects them or takes them seriously. If you make a doormat of yourself, you'll invariably get walked on. The world takes a worm at his own valuation.

. . . . Too "Grand" to Love . . . .

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

A cousin of the person who is speaking, fresh-home from the playgrounds of Europe, shook out to the air a few criticisms of the American woman—whom he is faithful to in spite of all!

His eyes held a dreamy light as he held a pensive chin on his fist. The dreamy light was laid by the person who is speaking to warm memories of the Foreign Fair! The cousin sighed and admitted it.

"What," said the person who is speaking, "what is the difference between that tres Parisienne and this la belle American? You say you like your childhood love, and you have been enchanted by the new one; you love them both—but that that Foreign Fair has just the most delicate edge on the home beauty in the matter of clothes. Just HOW? HOW are her clothes different?"

And the cousin fetched another sigh and tried to explain. Don't let it make you mad! Try to let it help you . . . me . . . any of us. Criticism that really is true of us, if not spoken too crudely, should be gathered in like so much secret information. Saved and drawn upon. Treated like a "tip."

"The woman abroad," elucidated beau cousine, "appears to be better dressed because she doesn't put on SO MUCH. She gets a nice, simple, lady-like effect, and LEAVES IT AT THAT. So many of our girls—rich as well as poor—seem to get too much on. They have too much jewelry around their necks, too many diamond or near-diamond clips, too fancy shoes, too big furs, too many things on, all at the same time. That other girl seems to know when the picture is finished. She looks so tailored, so neat, so something or other that is delightful. And she studies to be cultured and lady-like. Lady-like—what a charming word. She seems to think more of her manners, after her toilet is complete, than of her BEADS!"

ISN'T THAT TERRIBLE?

But then he went on to say: "But in spite of her clothes faults the American girl is the prettiest girl in the world! And things are getting better in that little matter of clothes and manners. Since the longer skirts came in I think Miss America is seriously taking up the art of simplicity in clothes and demureness in manner."

What do YOU think of what my cousin Doug comes home with? I am sorry to say I agree with him on the first—sometimes—and delighted to say I agree to the last also. —NELL BRINKLEY.

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

Don't Wait for Child to Outgrow Cross-Eyes

Every little child has a right to straight eyes. Children are humiliated and made unhappy if they have cross-eyes. Every child wants to be like the rest of the kiddies. Many a childish heartache comes from some slight deformity like this a defect which is easily overcome.

Dr. Copeland

The natural dread of its parent as to the danger of an operation has permitted many a child to grow up with no effort to correct the defect. Other children are the victims of the idea that the condition will be outgrown.

If your child begins to show any crossing of the eyes you should consult a competent physician at once. It may be that wearing the proper glasses will overcome the trouble. In any event find out what should be done.

In order to see things as they really are, the rays of light which enter the eyes must focus properly, just as the rays of light entering a camera are focused. On the plate or film, the lens focuses the light. If it isn't properly focused, the picture is blurred and distorted.

Nature has provided the eye with a wonderful focusing muscle. By its action the rays of light are made to focus on the retina of the eye. The image is made clear and distinct.

But, you ask, how is the cross-eyed condition brought about?

Each of us has two eyes, of course. Each eye must work with the other in looking directly at a given object. This action requires perfect team work on the part of the eye muscles. Sometimes, unfortunately, this team work is lacking. Then one eye will wander off to the side instead of looking straight ahead. The focusing muscle is not working properly and without clear vision the eye wanders.

In a large majority of cases this condition can be overcome by wearing proper glasses. The glasses take the pressure off the focusing muscle and gradually overcome the tendency of the eyes to cross. As the child grows the eyeball grows. There is less and less need for the focusing muscles to act. The vision grows better and at last the glasses may be discarded.

Sometimes a very bad case of cross-eye may call for a slight operation. It is a simple matter and not at all serious. There is no danger that the operation will ruin the sight, because the cutting is confined to the outside of the eyeball, and not on the inside where the vital parts are. Parents need not dread having it done, because there is no chance of danger.

It is only right that every child should have the best care and treatment of the eyes, teeth and of the entire body. Nowadays the great hospitals and clinics are open to the public and the best medical skill can be obtained there. If you cannot afford to pay for the service it will be well done in one of these institutions.

When a child begins to show the slightest sign of cross-eyes, the first thing to do is to consult your doctor. If he is not a specialist in eye troubles he will direct you where to go.

Noel Receives First Lesson in Art of Conquering Jealousy

My heart traveled into my boots as Noel demanded, "What young man?"

"There is something which you and I must thrash out, Noel, before we go any further," I said slowly, "and I want your promise not to be angry at what I am going to say."

"You have it," he said promptly, but the tensity in his face did not lessen.

"You are showing a perfectly ridiculous jealousy of Mary," I said. "When I spoke of the cadets coming to her party, you exhibited it, although you apologized beautifully when I rebuked you for it. But here it is showing its ugly green head again, just because I spoke of your father's friend whom he means to bring to the party. Now, Noel, frankly, you are going to be of no use to me whatever if you cannot control this feeling. You have no real cause for it, but I warn you that during that party your self-control is going to be sorely father's bringing someone. I can't help but feel—"

"Your intuition is correct," I told him. "I am sure your father has introduced this young man to Mary with the hope that she would be attracted to him."

I waited, but to my gratification, Noel did not ask again who his father's friend was.

"He is a noted talkie star, Colin Cameron."

"I've heard of him," Noel said grimly, "but I've never seen him. Your husband calls him—" he hesitated.

"God's gift to girls, or something like that," I returned, smiling. "I can imagine that he is considered very attractive by many young women, for he is handsome, and has charming manners. But he made no appeal to Mary, I can do no better than to quote you her uncle's atrocious slangy comment about her treatment of him. 'She kidded him so adroitly, skinned him so neatly,' my husband said, 'that the poor goof didn't even know what had happened to him. He went away, thinking he'd added another to his list of scalps.'"

"You think my father is plotting with this young man—" he stopped uncertainly.

"Yes, I do," I told him frankly. "I think he hopes Mary will become infatuated with him, and that your engagement will be broken on that account. But I do not think he is confining his plotting to anything so comparatively innocuous as that, Noel, you must control yourself, when I tell you that your father has been paying private detectives to watch Mary's every movement, hoping to discover something discreditable in her actions, or failing that, to give a sinister interpretation to some perfectly innocent action."

He sprang to his feet, clinching and unclinching his hands.

"Bravo!" I said. "You are acquitting yourself admirably, and now for your reward I will tell you that Mary is in no danger whatever. Either Mrs. Underwood, Mrs. Bickett, or I are with her every moment. I had the pleasure of telling your father so that last night at dinner, when Mr. Cameron invited Mary to drive and lunch with him."

His face lightened. "Oh! but that is wonderful of all three of you," he said. "I can stop worrying on that score, at any rate. But you said you wanted me to puzzle my father, and to show no resentment toward him. Won't you go on from there?"

"It's just this," I told him. "Your father naturally expects that his letter will have made you terribly angry as well as hopelessly frightened. He will believe that you are trying to avoid Mary for her sake—even though you give no credit to his accusations. If you act perfectly unconcerned, especially if you can affect a little air of secret amusement, you will nonplus him completely."

"Not half so much as he has puzzled me," Mary's voice said.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

Can a man do fancy work, cross stitching and crocheting and still be a regular fellow among the men?

A lady informs me that while I may be slightly surprised, if not thoroughly shocked, she knows a regular he-man who does the most beautiful cross stitch work. She told it at her card club and everybody laughed, and she says, "Why do they laugh? The cross stitch pattern is art, beautifully done, and if some men paint, why can't other men make their pictures this way? What's the difference so far as being called effeminate is concerned?"

She's right; there isn't any difference, except that custom has turned over to women the business of making fancy work and it has made painting pictures a free-for-all art. If all men made cross stitch pictures no one would laugh at the idea.

Women are certainly walking into many of the heretofore masculine jobs, some of them are great successes in things no woman would have considered 50 years ago. So I can't see any reason why men shouldn't grab a few of their arts.

The picture of a man doing fancy work is funny only because it's novel. Men don't slip on a banana peel every day and do a flip on the hard pavement, so while there isn't much sense to it, everybody laughs when one does the trick. If men fell habitually, with someone doing a turn on some corner, it would cease to be either funny or interesting.

We used to laugh when men became hairdressers, but because they are (if you will pardon me) the best hairdressers, all women prefer them and they are becoming next to a necessity. I wouldn't be surprised to see men doing the family dressmaking some day. They already do that as a business, so why not at home?

Women drive taxicabs and serve on the police force. Why isn't that just as funny as making cross stitch footstools and whatnots?

Men hire out as cooks don't they, and keep women out of their rightful kitchens? Frankly I don't think women will begrudge them the sewing as it's a bit nerve wracking, and women still have more nerves than men.

A bride wrote me to discourage her husband, a German, from wearing earrings as he had announced his intention to wear them. I wrote an article calculated to discourage the man and help the poor weeping bride. Did I succeed? No, indeed! I only got a hundred letters from men throughout the country asking me how I got that way and telling me that men could and would and should wear earrings.

So the cross-stitch man probably is right. At any rate I can see his point of view. And you, what do you think?

Horos

Sunday, January 11

Sunday's horoscope is not considered a hopeful or promising one. It is particularly menacing to those in the employment of others as well as to all kinds of secret, subtle, or mystical activities. There is a hint of the treacherous and sinister, reacting on the personal interest and welfare.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year of secret menace and miscarriage of plans through treachery, deceit or subtle undertermining, both personal and business. Employment is under particularly hazardous sway and should be safeguarded against duplicity. Discretion in all the affairs is urged.

A child born on this day may have a peculiar and unfathomable disposition, being inclined to the mysterious and curious. It may be disposed to attain its end by strategy or sly methods but will gain little in the employment of others.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

As the Married Woman Refers to Her Husband

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly advise me on the correct form regarding woman's reference to her husband? Is he "Mr. Smith" Is he "John," or is he "my-husband?" I know there is a particular time for each expression but I am not sure of the correctness.

A. R.

I am glad that you are giving thought to this question, for it is one on which so many married women do not think at all. And it's most important—one of those Big Little Things by which we are judged.

Only to servants or tradesmen does a married woman refer to her husband as "Mr. Smith." It is obvious that in this case she would need the most formal form of the name. To close friends she refers to her husband as "John." To others . . . friends who are not especially close friends, acquaintances, even people whom she may just have met . . . she refers to her husband as "my husband." It would not, in this case, be correct to say "Mr. Smith" and "John" would seem a bit too informal, so "my husband" seems to be the obviously appropriate thing to say.

Accepting the Formal Invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—When an invitation to a party is written in the third person, is the acceptance or refusal answered in the same way, or is it permissible to send one's calling card, and if so, what should be written on it?

2—Is it mailed in a long envelope? ROSE.

1—An invitation written in the third person should be acknowledged by a note written in the third person—acceptance or regret. It is not considered good form to send one's visiting card for such an acknowledgment.

2—No. A visiting card is mailed in a card envelope.

When One Does Not Hear Distinctly

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a person is spoken to and doesn't understand, is it correct to say, "I beg your pardon"? ANXIOUS.

Yes . . . or "I'm sorry I didn't hear what you said."

Household Hints

A few drops of castor oil placed on the loosened sewing machine belt will tighten it up for further service.

Mend the break in the carpet or rug before it becomes a serious tear. Darn down the broken edges onto a piece of woolen material on the wrong side.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Here's a simple beauty stunt for gals who are afflicted with sallow skin: before breakfast take the juice of two oranges and the juice of a half a lemon. At bedtime lay thin slices of lemon on a steaming hot towel and apply to the complexion. Lave the skin with cold water and get busy with a heavy skin food, patting it in with the finger tips.

Cold sores are not always symptoms of colds. They are often produced by digestive disturbances or faulty elimination of the intestinal tract. Infections of the tonsils will bring about these distressing blemishes that make a lady's face look as if it had suddenly gone to seed. Camphor ice is considered a satisfactory cure, though often the blister progresses better if it is not tampered with at all.

Girls who are still wearing the short bob must be mindful of those ugly whiskerettes that sprout at the rear neckline, casting a mournful shadow. If the beauty budget does not permit of a frequent hair cut, the supplicant for loveliness can buy a pair of clippers, the which can be manipulated by any member of the family. While hair is longer and thicker at the rear, there must be that close inward curve just above the hairline which imparts a graceful contour to the head.

Do you know that a cowlick is the beginning of a waveline? Girls with cowlicks should experiment with the water wave; there may be a hidden undulation that has never developed. Many a straight-haired darling has become curly through finger waves. The stunt is to have the same operator do the work each time, so the pattern is always the same.

Painful cuticle and ingrowing nails on the outer edge of the big toe are results of pressure. A wider shoe will do away with the troubles. A thin soled shoe is more likely to cause foot ills than one with a slightly heavier sole which keeps its shape and doesn't curl upward at the toe. Bunions are self-inflicted; the big toe is turned inward by a shoe that is not properly fitted.

Please note that the highly painted, bedizened phiz does not harmonize with longer skirts, more ornate millinery and the fluff-stuff of ruffles and curls. Fashions are going a bit Victorian. Ladylike is the only word that describes flowing draperies, dolmans, peplums and all their sweet sartorial ilk. Even the ladies of the chorus are shading down stage make-up. Cheeks must not look like patches of red flannel or the stop signal on the boulevard. To be of the mode, they must carry no color more striking than that of the pink rosebud.

BRIGHTER VIEW BEING TAKEN OF OUTLOOK

Expected Increase in Steel Orders Held Harbinger of Trade Confidence Return

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Men in high places in Wall street are beginning to take a more cheerful view of the outlook. From talks with spokesmen for the inner circle of real leaders, I gather that there is approval of the verdict which the stock market has been giving since the rally from the December lows.

The barometric United States Steel Corporation, which is scheduled to report on unfilled orders on hand as of December 1 at noon today, will show a substantial increase in bookings, estimated at 200,000 tons. Incidentally, this will bring gains for the quarter up to 450,000 tons, reflecting primarily the thoroughness with which the corporation cut down production to bring it in tune with demand. But since the first of January, it is understood that bookings for the first quarter of 1931 have been distinctly better, indicating the early harbingers of a return in business confidence.

Mr. Rukeyser.

The silent financiers, to whom the Street looks for leadership, are also favorably impressed with the disposition since the turn of the year to add men to factory payrolls. As a result of improved orders recently, the steel corporation is giving fuller employment to the part-time men on its program. This company was a leader in the plan for staggering work, rather than dropping men completely. The higher executives of the steel corporation, believing that the turn is at hand or nearby, are strongly in favor of maintaining hourly wage rates and are hopeful that American industry can keep out of the depression without "deflating" labor.

An individual who belongs to the group which is popularly supposed to "make" markets, though in reality conditions make markets and this group has merely been unusually successful in sizing up situations, told me:

"I think we are ready for business recovery. The recent actual turn in security and some commodity prices is far more effective in restoring confidence than 'sunshine' talk. Unless some unpredictable event occurs, I think we are about ready for a turnabout. You can't keep this country running at 50 per cent capacity very long. Supplies are gradually being used up, and the apparently large surplus of raw staples will be reduced when middlemen decide to stock up again according to normal standards.

"Of course, the country has been very sick. Accordingly, recuperation must necessarily be slow. I think we are at the verge of a period of gradual recovery."

LIQUOR RAIDERS ARREST FIVE

Prohibition agents seized a liquor-laden automobile and staged four raids in the city yesterday.

John Wishenwsky, 38, of 2700 Carson street, was arrested in Tyson street, agents said, while driving an automobile which contained 120 gallons of moonshine. He was held in bond.

A 100-gallon still was confiscated at 809 Dunster street, Brookline, where Emilio Bersani, 40, was arrested, according to the raiders. Another still of a 50-gallon capacity was found in a building in the rear of 939 Henger street, it was reported.

Fifty pints of moonshine and 12 cases of home brew were found at 2220 Forbes street, and John Murray, 22, and Thomas J. Healey, 52, were arrested in the raid, agents said.

In the home of Josephine Bosco, at 1604 Cliff street, 30 gallons of moonshine were reported seized. She was released on her own recognizance.

$95,000 ASKED IN FOUR SUITS

James Vagila, of Carnick, whose daughter, Margaret, 2, was hurt in an automobile accident in Becks Run road May 25, has filed suit for $25,000 damages in Common Pleas Court against Ralph Greb, of Mt. Oliver, whose car is said to have collided with the machine in which Vagila's wife and daughter were riding.

Because of the death of their son, Joseph, 18, killed by a truck at Smithfield street and Fifth avenue August 21, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Srkoch, 850 Homart street, McKees Rocks, have filed suit for $20,000 damages against the Railways Express Company, whose vehicle they say struck the boy.

George E. Myers, Versailles Township, has filed suit asking $20,000 damages from the Linde-Air Products Company for injuries sustained by his son, George E. Myers, Jr., 6, who, it is claimed, was struck by a truck of the defendants in St. Barnabas road last November 7.

Mrs. Catherine Cordello is seeking $30,000 damages from A. J. Roth, a grocer at 5806 Penn avenue, because of injuries she sustained when she walked into an open cellar door in front of the store August 29.

JOB AID MARCH PLANNED HERE

A parade to demand additional aid for the unemployed from the mayor and city council is scheduled to move to the City-County Building Wednesday at 1:30 p. m. Leaders of the Trade Union Unity League declare they will march despite the refusal of a permit by Police Superintendent Peter P. Walsh.

At a meeting Tuesday night in Carnegie Music Hall, William Z. Foster will speak and 15 men will be elected to head the delegation to the city hall. League leaders assert several thousand marchers will be in line, assembling in different sections of the downtown district.

Foster will not be present for the march, having a speaking engagement in Philadelphia Wednesday night. More demonstrations are planned for February 10 when a petition will be presented to Congress asking passage of the unemployment insurance bill.

Real Estate

Marcus Aaron, president of the Board of Public Education, will address the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board next Tuesday at the organization's weekly luncheon meeting in the William Penn Hotel.

A national building survey made public today by the National Association of Building Trades Employers reports that nation-wide construction activities will be on their way to normalcy by early spring. According to the survey, reports from 27 leading cities show more than $1,000,000,000 in large projects are scheduled for the first four months of the year. This does not include an extensive government program nor, in many instances, home building.

An improved property in Brookline boulevard, Nineteenth Ward, has been purchased by Carl G. Rueppeil from Kathryn G. Miller for $7,000. The lot is 30x120 feet.

A double house, containing 12 rooms and two baths, in LeMoyne avenue, Mt. Lebanon, has been sold for W. J. Loufman to J. Noble by George H. Dunn, Mt. Lebanon realtor. The purchase was made for an investment, according to Dunn.

James R. McKillips has deeded to Edward E. Ludwig an improved property in Linden avenue, Fourteenth Ward. The lot is 20x130 feet.

Applications for building permits follow:

Nineteenth Ward—A. Gravant, brick dwelling, 2730 Shiras avenue, $5,000. J. Geib, frame addition, 2 Boggs avenue, $10,000.

Second Ward—O. Herchman, alterations, Smithfield street and Oliver avenue, $2,500.

HOLDS SCIENCE TO LEAD BOOM

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(INS.)—Chemical and other young industries will lead the return of prosperity in the United States, according to Dr. Arthur D. Little, chemist and inventor, of Cambridge, Mass.

Speaking here last night at Columbia University when he received the Perkin medal for "The Most Distinguished Service to American Applied Chemistry," Dr. Little said the chemical industries faced their greatest period of development and said they should aid greatly in stimulating industrial revival.

He predicted chemical agents replacing water in heating and power equipment and said new foods were in prospect.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—A wealthy bride is acting as Lady Bountiful on the Bowery. Mrs. Irving T. Bush, the former Marian Spore, has been standing outdoors for hours handing out meal tickets and clothing. This is the fourth winter she has done so. Her husband at times has assisted with coat off and sleeves rolled up. They were married last June.

Two Hurt in Crash Awarded $20,000

Beatrice M. Potous was awarded $15,000 and her husband, Andrew Potous $5,000 by a jury in Common Pleas Court in their suit against Kaufmann's Department Store for injuries they received when a store truck collided with their automobile on the Liberty Bridge November 9, 1928. They asked $75,000.

OPTIMISTIC ON FIXED TRUSTS

By STEPHEN L. VANDERVEER,
President, Allied Business Corporation Shares, Inc.

The fixed investment trust enters the year 1931 with particularly bright prospects. In fact, the very conditions which have clouded the business and financial skies during the past 15 months have created for the careful investor an opportunity unparalleled in recent years, and the popularity of the fixed trust during 1930 was based upon the fact that it is particularly well adapted to permit investors to take advantage of this situation.

The turn of the year finds the level of common stock prices depressed to a new low, after a year of intermittent liquidation of a severe character. Much of this liquidation, especially in the last few months, has been of a distinctly forced variety, connected with banking and credit problems that have little to do with intrinsic security values. As a result, the deflation in common stock prices has been carried to a point where many issues sell at levels which not only fail to discount any increase in earnings in the future, but which rather allow for further declines in income—a development which no competent observer expects for American industry as a whole.

Past experience tells us that it is in periods such as these that the foundations are effectively laid for profitable investment of the kind which has built up the major family fortunes of this country. Hence, the wise investor will now guide his investment policy to take advantage of this situation, and the fixed investment trust is devised to permit him to do so along safeguarded lines.

AIDS SOLUTION OF MUNICIPAL PROBLEM

Increased Installations Of Incinerators Also Held Health Measure

Solution of the problem of disposing of the refuse of large cities is being found in the increased installations of incinerator plants in modern homes and apartment buildings, according to Harry E. Hollis, general manager of the Pittsburgh Incinerator Company.

Transferring waste matter to central disposal plants is undesirable, in Mr. Hollis' opinion. Not only does it menace health because of the necessity of keeping containers around the house, but through the inconvenience of transporting through public streets.

COSTS GROWING

Cities are becoming more and more conscious of the great expense due to the present methods of rubbish and garbage disposal. Taxpayers are realizing that there is a large indirect cost to them in what appears to be free collection of waste. The Pittsburgh Incinerator Company manufactures the built-in-chimney type incinerators for new homes and apartments and also portable and wall type incinerators.

The company's plant is located on Star way, Mt. Washington. It has sales offices and display rooms at 501 Keystone Bank Building and a display at the Architects' and Builders' Exhibit at 514 Seventh avenue.

CANAL PARLEY GROUP NAMED

A "contact" committee to meet with Chairman S. Wallace Dempsey, of the Rivers and Harbors Committee of Congress in Washington next Friday, was appointed at a meeting of Pittsburgh and Youngstown backers for the proposed Lake Erie and Ohio River Canal in the Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

Speakers were President James Rae, of the Pittsburgh Chamber; Frank Purnell, president of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Corporation; T. J. Bray, president of the Beaver, Mahoning and Shenango Valley Improvement Association, and Col. J. P. Leaf, president of the Beaver Valley Canal Board.

The committee appointed includes Alex W. Dann, president, Keystone Sand and Supply Company, chairman; A. B. Shepherd, vice president of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation; H. E. Booth, Pittsburgh Coal Company; J. F. Hillman, Hillman Coal and Coke Company; R. H. Watson, Carnegie Steel Company; City Councilman W. Y. English, County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, F. A. Leovy, Gulf Refining Company; Col. Leaf; Frank Beadel, New Castle, vice president and treasurer, Beaver, Mahoning and Shenango Valley Improvement Association; T. M. Girdler, president, Republic Steel Corporation; A. P. Oxtoby, Wheeling Steel Corporation, and W. F. Morris, Jr., Weirton Steel Corporation.

With this group, which will leave for Washington Thursday night, will be T. C. Foley, general manager, and Donald O. Moore, traffic manager of the Chamber.

The papers pointed out Japan's bitter experiences with loans to China in the past, one of which totaled $78,000,000. This, as well as others, the papers said, have never been retrieved.

STEEL BUYING TAKES GOOD INCREASE

Production Also Shows Usual Seasonal Gain; Finished Prices Firm

By B. F. V. LUTY

By reason of the holidays it was of no business significance that steel production last week was above that of the previous week and it is of little significance that this week has run above last week. Assuming that 41 per cent is a fairly close estimate for the week now ending, there will have to be decided further improvement in the remaining three weeks of the month to make the month average 45 per cent.

The rate in the last week of the month would have to be around 48 per cent, and from the present outlook that seems doubtful.

Thus while it is perfectly clear that a seasonal and natural increase in steel production is now in progress, it is doubtful whether it fully measures up to what would be expected from seasonal precedent. It may easily be, of course, that by reason of the conservative attitude of buyers all down the line the seasonal peak will come later than usual, there being a slower ascent to it.

BUYERS CAUTIOUS

Increase in steel buying is widespread both as to to classes of material and as to the number of buyers. The orders are numerous and individually small. Producers are very reserved as to making deductions from the increased flow of orders, thinking that perhaps much of it is due to replenishment of stocks after a very drastic liquidation for inventory taking. A couple weeks more of increasing buying would produce much stronger assurance that steel is definitely on the mend and in an important way.

The various steel consuming lines do not supply much light as to the future, their prospects appearing somewhat hazy. Farm implement makers are reported to be proceeding very cautiously as to buying, and apparently are making no predictions as to their operations. Some steel producers are unwilling to accept preliminary reports that automobile production was 135,000 in November and 155,000 in December, showing a 15 per cent increase. That is not in accordance with their idea, based on steel they shipped, and it is strikingly contrary to seasonal precedent. Beginning about a week ago there have been increased orders from the automobile trade, but only in the case of a few makers, though one is a very large maker.

SMALLER RAIL ORDERS

Total rail business in the buying movement to date is about 750,000 tons, distinctly less than usual, and later in coming out. Fabricated structural steel business was remarkably good in the first eight months of last year, showing but a slight decrease from 1929. Since then the movement has been lighter. It may be significant that in the last three months nearly 50 per cent more tonnage has come up for bidding than has actually been let.

Firm Opens New Warehouse Here

R. L. Balch, district manager of the Hurley Machine Company, announces the opening of a new warehouse at 206 Penn avenue. According to Mr. Balch, the new warehouse will be the sole distributing office for Thor products in the Pittsburgh district.

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

Forbes

By B. C. FORBES

OWEN D. YOUNG with a police guard! What a commentary!

Owen Young should be the last man in America to receive "threatening letters." Not one "capitalist" in the United States has gone as far as he has gone in championing the rights of workers. It was he who, a few years ago, said publicly that he looked hopefully for the day to come when labor would employ capital, when labor would be the owners of our great enterprises, when labor would be boss. He has gone so far, indeed, in his sympathetic attitude toward wage earners that some of our old-fashioned employers wonder whether he has not turned Socialist!

Mr. Forbes

Since General Electric came under Mr. Young's direction, it has gone farther than most corporations in launching plans for the benefit of workers. In addition to insurance, sickness, pension and such plans, General Electric some time ago established an unemployment fund, to which every executive, from Mr. Young and President Swope down, is today contributing. More recently, one very large General Electric plant instituted a guarantee of steady all-the-year-round employment.

Then, where could be found a private citizen who has rendered more signal public service than Owen Young? He is regarded in Europe as the ablest of all the Americans delegated to co-operate over there in restoring the world's equilibrium. It is no secret that he was chiefly responsible for the actual formation of the original Dawes plan, and it was Young who again led the whole intellectual field in evolving the Young plan. In every movement inspired by President Hoover looking toward the betterment of employment conditions in this country, Young has influentially and helpfully participated.

He is known today throughout the world as the greatest conciliator of the century. His personality acts like a charm on individuals or bodies engaged in disputes. They always are impressed, not only by his phenomenal and analytical ability, but by his out-and-out sincerity, his fine sense of fairness, his absolute disinterestedness in seeking a just decision. His manner is gentle in the extreme, the polar antithesis of bellicose.

Why this splendid citizen, modest in mien and unselfish in action, should be singled out, even by a crank, for annoyance, passes all understanding.

Incidentally, the police guard about which the newspapers have said so much, was not sought by Mr. Young. Nothing could be more distasteful to him. Protective measures were instituted, not by Mr. Young, but by others. Very sensibly, he has not regarded himself as in any danger—"innocence is triple armor," as Shakespeare said.

I can well understand why some men occupying high places are not regarded with any measure of cordiality by fiery agitators. But Owen D. Young, no! He, as a matter of fact, is more Lincolnian than any other industrial or financial leader in America today.

WHAT HAPPENS to the money you and I pay the railroads in passenger fares and for the food and fuel and other necessaries of life they transport to us?

We pay them more than six and a quarter billion dollars a year—6,279 millions.

This important question is answered very clearly by the Bureau of Railway Economics of Washington. The information may be summarized thus:

OPERATING RECEIPTS
Freight transportation	$4,852,672,121
Passenger transportation	874,564,216
Express transportation	118,190,921
Mail transportation	137,486,192
All other services	280,643,746
Total	$6,228,520,544
Net miscellaneous income	26,501,454
Total	$6,306,021,998
OPERATING EXPENSES
Salaries and wages	$2,674,085,576
Locomotive fuel	356,619,344
Materials, supplies	1,118,548,560
Loss and damage, injuries and insurance	98,308,413
Rent of cars, union stations, etc.	123,921,329
Depreciation returns	559,345,940
Taxes	396,852,851
Rent of leased roads	171,878,813
Interest on borrowed money	443,357,800
Cash dividends	490,129,873
Balance (for new facilities, etc.)	174,837,076
Total	$6,306,021,998

It is explained that more than one hundred million dollars should be deducted from the dividends total because this amount is paid by certain railroads to other railroads and is therefore a duplication.

The railroads, it is thus shown, actually pay more money in taxes than they pay to 806,701 stockholders in dividends. Every day of the week, including Sunday, the railroads have to hand over more than a million dollars to tax collectors.

America's railroads are faring none too well financially. They should be able to do better for themselves and for the public once the various large-scale consolidations now planned are completed and sanctioned by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The sooner such sanction can be conscientiously given, the earlier will business and employment prosperity return.

LEHMAN LAUDS BLAW-KNOX RECORD

New Products and 1931 Sales Policy Discussed At Company's Meeting

The annual dinner of the sales and executive departments of the Blaw-Knox Company was held Thursday, January 8, at 6:30. There were present 250 members of the Blaw-Knox organization and its subsidiaries, including the Pittsburgh Rolls Corporation, the Lewis Foundry and Machine Company, the National Alloy Steel Company and the Union Steel Casting Company.

At the conclusion of the banquet the gathering resolved itself into a business session, at which the principal address was made by Albert C. Lehman, president. Mr. Lehman reviewed the results of the Blaw-Knox Company and its subsidiaries during the year just passed and complimented the organization on its achievements during a year of trying business conditions.

OFFICERS SPEAK

Mr. Lehman also discussed the successful efforts of the company as shown by its foreign subsidiaries and its export subsidiary, the Blaw-Knox International Corporation, New York City. He complimented the sales department for the quota of business which had been reported to him based on the outlook for 1931 and assured these departments that the management shared their optimism and stood ready to back their efforts to reach their goal in whatever way that might be necessary.

Addresses were made by Irvin F. Lehman, Wayne Rawley and F. M. Bowman, vice presidents, and by Frank Cordes, president of the Lewis Foundry and Machine Company, by Jan R. Dunsford, president of the Union Steel Casting Company, by Q. S. Snyder, president of the Pittsburgh Rolls Corporation, and by N. B. Ornitz, president of the National Alloy Steel Company.

ROADS DELEGATION

The meeting was brought to a close with a discussion of the sales policy in 1931 and a brief description of the new products the company will market by Chester H. Lehman, general sales manager.

A large delegation left last night for St. Louis to attend a meeting of the Blaw-Knox American distributors of road-building equipment, in connection with the annual good roads show, which is being held all of the following week, and at which attendance of from 25,000 to 30,000 engineers and contractors is expected.

Mail Plane Crashes In Belgium; 2 Die

BRUSSELS, Jan. 10.—(INS.)—Two pilots of a night mail plane flying between Brussels and London were killed today when the machine crashed and burned at Melle, near Ghent. The cargo of mail was destroyed.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Jennie Caldwell.

Mrs. Jennie Perkins Caldwell, 78, widow of Eben Caldwell, and mother of Burgess William P. Caldwell, of Elizabeth, died early today in her home in Forward township. She was born at Hannastown, Pa., and had spent her entire life in Southwestern Pennsylvania. She was a daughter and A. A. and Lucinda Baker Perkins. Her father for many years was proprietor of the Webster Flour Mills, at Webster, Pa. She was a member of the Round Hill Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Caldwell leaves six sons: Burgess Caldwell, Dr. Charles S. Caldwell, of Swissvale; Earl B. Caldwell, of Forward township; Stanley F. Caldwell, of Bentleyville; Eben S. Caldwell, of Donora, and J. Howard Caldwell, of Wilkinsburg; three sisters, Mrs. W. W. Fulton, of Swissvale; Mrs. W. W. Dinsmore, of Mercersburg, Pa., and Miss Margaret Perkins, of Canonsburg, and 13 grandchildren. Funeral services will be held from her late residence Tuesday afternoon and burial will be in the Round Hill cemetery in Elizabeth township.

Bullister Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Muller Bullister, 49, who died in her home at 120 Plymouth street, Wednesday night, will be held Monday morning in St. Mary's of the Mount Catholic Church. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery. Mrs. Bullister was a life-long resident of Pittsburgh and lived for many years in the Point district before moving to Duquesne Heights. She leaves her husband, Michael J. Bullister; two sons, Martin J. Bullister of New York and Michael Bullister, Jr., at home; two daughters, Mrs. Anthony Crist and Miss Mary Catherine Bullister and a sister, Miss Barbara Muller of Pittsburgh.

Curran Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Catherine Curran, widow of Charles Curran, will be held Monday from the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. L. O'Toole, 425 South Aiken avenue. Mrs. Curran died Thursday. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery. Mrs. Curran leaves three sons, William and Charles Curran of Pittsburgh and John F. Curran of Savannah, Ga., and six daughters, Mrs. O'Toole, Sister M. Crescentia, Mrs. H. B. Barnhart, Miss Lillian, and Miss Bessie, of Pittsburgh and Mrs. J. J. O'Reilly of Lakewood, O.

AUTHOR'S TALK SCHEDULED

Whether a man or a machine makes a more desirable hod-carrier on a 50-story building; how a chemist describes the energy of ninety billion kilowatt hours of electricity; how to appreciate the size of a billion of anything—these and similar questions of human interest will be put before the audience that hears Charles M. Ripley, of Schenectady, N. Y., General Electric engineer, author and globe-trotter, at the meeting of the Electric League of Pittsburgh at 12:15 p. m., January 12, at the Roosevelt Hotel.

Mr. Ripley's subject is "Electricity—Past, Present and Future." He is a student not only of electrical events, but also of economic and industrial progress in the past 50 years. Born in Indiana, he graduated from Purdue University and has two degrees in electrical engineering. For 14 years he has been in the service of the General Electric Company. He has been an extensive traveler, by land, sea and air, both in this country and abroad, and has made comparative observations of the present economic trend in various countries.

DAVIS NAMED PARADE CHIEF

HARRISBURG, Jan. 10.—At the request of Gov.-elect Pinchot, Senator William H. Earnest, chairman of the legislative inaugural committee, invited Col. David J. Davis, of Scranton, to be chief marshal of the inaugural parade when Pinchot is inducted into office January 20.

Col. Davis, chief of staff of the 28th Division, Pennsylvania National Guard, was lieutenant governor during the first Pinchot administration.

The Rev. J. W. Claudy, Pittsburgh, has been invited to ask the invocation at the inauguration ceremonies at Pinchot's request, Senator Earnest said.

Japanese Coastal Gale Tosses Ships

LONDON, Jan. 10.—(INS.)—A blizzard sweeping the Japanese coast was causing havoc to shipping interests and spreading fears for the safety of numerous vessels, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Tokio today.

Anxiety for the chartered transport Nankai Maru was allayed when a radio was received saying all was well. The transport is carrying 1,356 troops to Korea.

Easy Come—Easy Go Colleges Forecast

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—College boys of the future aren't going to be bothered much about checkups on their attendance at lectures, if the prediction of President Frank Parker Day, of Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., come true. He told a Union College alumni meeting that some day students will study only subjects they are interested in long enough to master, whether it takes two months or four years.

New Byers Plant Shown To Be Success

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

PRODUCTION OF WROUGHT iron by the new process recently developed by the A. M. Byers Company has been entirely satisfactory both from the standpoint of cost and quality according to the organization's annual report made public yesterday.

E. M. Byers, chairman of the board, stated that the new plant has been entirely completed except for a few minor items. The primary unit, which makes wrought iron by the new process, was first operated on an experimental basis in June and by August it was producing a sufficient volume to meet all requirements. Operation of the other major units has been equally satisfactory. Operating difficulties encountered in putting an entirely new plant in operation, involving adjustments of equipment and personnel, have been of a comparatively minor nature.

Capacity of the new plant, as shown by actual operation, is greater than originally estimated and is considerably in excess of past requirements. It is expected that, with the return of normal business conditions, the volume of business can be increased to plant capacity.

No Financing Required

NO ADDITIONAL FINANCING will be necessary to reimburse the treasury for capital expenditures. The final cost of the Byers plant will show some increase over the original estimate because of additional land purchased, unexpected construction difficulties and improvements and changes in design and capacity of the various units.

On September 30, 1930, the close of the company's fiscal year, the estimated amount of obligations incurred but unpaid was approximately $1,000,000. Sufficient cash was on hand to pay all obligations incident to the completion of the plant and still to leave sufficient working capital for the normal requirements of the company.

At the South Side plant improvements also have been practically completed. The cost of these improvements was slightly less than the original estimates. At the end of the fiscal year obligations due to these improvements amounted to only about $60,000.

In Transition Period

THE CHANGE FROM hand puddling to production by the new process kept the company in a transition stage during the last fiscal year. The entire Girard plant was abandoned because of obsolescence brought about by the construction of the new plant at Economy, Pa. All book values of salvaged property at Economy and at Ambridge have been reduced to a conservative salvage value. All value in excess of salvage have been charged against the capital and earned surplus accounts.

The lease on the Warren plant expired on December 31, 1929, and it was turned back to the owners at that time. The Warren plant was used for early experiments on the commercial production of wrought iron by the new process.

These changes made various adjustments in property and surplus accounts necessary to make the balance sheet reflect the actual value of the company.

Process Successful

BECAUSE OF THE BUSINESS depression, production at the Byers new plant has been at a lower rate than expected and below capacity. This low rate of production has made it impossible to date to realize a unit cost of the product as low as would be possible with a large volume of business, but production has been in sufficient volume to show that, with normal output, unit costs as low as expected can be realized.

The period of reduced operations has permitted the smoothing out of minor operating and equipment adjustments incident to placing the new plant in operation without interfering with production schedules. Quality of the product is fully up to expectations and great interest in its use is being shown by many industries where the qualities inherent in wrought iron make its use desirable and profitable.

Earnings Decline

THE BUSINESS DEPRESSION and the changes in operations were responsible for a decline in earnings. In spite of these factors, the company was able to earn dividend requirements on $6,384,200 of 7 per cent cumulative participating preferred stock more than two and one-half times.

Net profit for the year ended September 30, 1930, was $1,133,837 after deducting taxes, depreciation, depletion and amortization of patents. This was equivalent to $2.74 a share on 266,635 shares of common stock after deducting preferred dividends. This compared with $1,977,197 or $5.80 a share on the common in the previous fiscal year.

As a result of plant improvements the balance sheet of September 30, 1930, showed physical properties carried at $18,012,058 after depreciation and depletion, compared with $10,943,185 at the close of the previous fiscal year. Current assets stood at $7,065,126 against current liabilities of only $1,520,296. Cash of $2,395,580 exceeded all current liabilities.

PARLEY IN MINE STRIKE MONDAY

CARDIFF, Wales, Jan. 10.—A final effort to unsnarl the difficulties between owners and workers in the South Wales coal mine fields will be made in London Monday, it was learned today.

Lengthy conferences here and in London between the two factions so far have failed to bring an end to the present strike, involving 130,000 workers.

The South Wales strike followed introduction of the seven and a half hour day by the MacDonald government's new mines act. The owners argued the cut in hours demanded a reduction in wages.

British Cotton Mill Strike Threatened

MANCHESTER, England, Jan. 10.—(INS.)—Cotton mill owners and workers remained at loggerheads today as efforts to settle the weavers' strike at Burnley failed, resulting in threats of shutdowns by the manufacturers in Lancashire and Yorkshire.

Execution of the manufacturers' threat would mean the closing of Britain's leading cotton mills, depriving 250,000 weavers and 250,000 spinners out of work. The workers at Burnley struck to protest the employes' demands for more looms per weaver.

JOB ASSURANCE SUGGESTED

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(Universal Service)—An early return of prosperity will be made possible if business men everywhere assure workers their present jobs are safe, Paul Block, publisher, declared last night in an address over Radio Station WOR.

Such assurance, the publisher said, would remove fear and pessimism from the workers' minds and bring their money back into circulation, thus helping business and aiding jobless persons to get work.

Discussing the psychological effect of the great amount of unemployment, Mr. Block said:

"It has put fear into the minds of those who are still working—a fear that they might be the next to lose their positions, and, for this reason, they have stopped spending their usual shares of their weekly income."

LITTLE CHANGE IN RETAIL TRADE

Inventories of Retailers Lighter Than Usual; Collections Improve

There has been comparatively little change in the trade situation since the first of the year, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review. Sales at retail are comparatively light, and, due to inventories, buying at wholesale has shown but little activity thus far.

It is the general consensus of opinion of local jobbers that stock of merchandise in the hands of retailers are considerably lighter than usual, and jobbers' stocks will undoubtedly show much lighter inventories than is usual. Thus far there has been but little forward buying of dry goods and wearing apparel, but some improvement is anticipated as soon as inventories are completed. Demand for shoes is quiet and the leather market is dull. Dealers in tea, coffee and spices report demand fairly good, but the wholesale grocery trade in general is rather quiet, and the same situation is apparent in provision trade.

COAL OUTPUT OFF

Demand for sanitary and heating equipment continues at a low rate and demand for electrical equipment continues rather quiet.

Production of crude oil has shown another sharp reduction and is now at the lowest rate since the summer of 1926. Production of bituminous coal continues at a rate well below that of a year ago and demand continues quiet.

Although there have been a few instances of improvement in collections, the general average continues slow.

TURTLE CREEK WARS ON RUM

Turtle Creek police under Chief William Whelan and county detectives today were prepared to continue a drive begun yesterday to clear the borough of alleged speakeasies and punchboard sales. The campaign was started under instructions of borough council after complaints had been received from civic organizations and private citizens alleging increase of speakeasies and gambling devices.

Justice of the Peace William Wilkinson, of Turtle Creek, last night held August Balch, of 957 Airbrake avenue; Stanislaw Stec, of 111 Penn avenue, and Frank DeMarco, of Airbrake avenue and Line street, Turtle Creek, for court under $1,000 bail each for violation of the Snyder Act following raids upon their establishments yesterday. The arrests were made by police aided by County Detectives Joseph Bodner and Edward Frank.

DORMONT PLANS WATER PARLEY

Members of Dormont Borough Council and representatives of the South Pittsburgh Water Company will meet Thursday to settle differences over the type of water main to be laid from the Westmont avenue plant of the company to sections of the borough. It is claimed the pressure in the district affected is insufficient and that the new 24-inch pipe would not increase it.

Dormont Council met last night and upheld the action of Chester Winters, president of council, in stopping the company's workers from laying the 24-inch pipe last Wednesday. It was decided to meet with company representatives in an effort to patch up the differences.

STOCK MARKET IRREGULAR AT START

List Shows Unevenness At Beginning of Short Session; Steel Declines

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—The stock market began the day irregularly lower today. North American, American Telephone, American Water Works, Case, Missouri Pacific and Hudson lost a point each, and Anaconda, New York Central, Westinghouse Electric and United Aircraft sacred ... to ... On the other hand, Consolidated Gas, Atchison and Nash advanced ¾. U. S. Steel was off ¼.

The list softened after the selling at the opening and no sector recorded in the initial transactions were in the main quickly recovered. Several issues sold slightly above yesterday's final prices.

The overnight news included mildly favorable weekly reviews from the mercantile agencies. Unfavorable developments were the omission of the Skelly Oil dividend and breakdown of the latest Northern Pacific-Great Northern merger plan, but these seemed to have been discounted in advance.

After sagging to a new low, Allied Chemical rebounded, and soon sold a point over. Issues selling ½ to 1 point or more higher included U. S. Steel, Sears Roebuck, American Tobacco B, Bethlehem, Republic Steel preferred, Air Reduction, Gold Dust, National Biscuit and Borden.

Foreign exchanges were steady to firm with sterling cables back to $4.85⅞, or up 1-16.

EXPORT COPPER PRICE DROPS

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—A second reduction of a quarter of a cent a pound in as many days was made today in the price of export copper by Exporters, Inc.

Today's cut brought the price to 10.30 cents a pound, C. I. F. European base ports. In the domestic market, although nominally quoted at 10½ cents, copper has been sold by some custom smelters as low as 10 cents a pound.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 10.—The price of silver steadied slightly here this morning, as the result of profit-taking by speculators.

POLITICAL FIREWORKS ON RADIO

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Busier than ever with statistics and plans for the new year, the radio rajahs have yet to announce that they are to point their microphones to the rich and inexhaustible gossip of Washington. It is hard to understand their delay.

Gossip has become the great American craze. Except when it concerns Washington. It is aired consistently. The very mention of Washington seems to terrify the radio rajahs. Washington must not be humanized. It must ever give off a deadly dignity. It must not be presented as a city where men are men, but where men are stuffy and self-conscious orators, voicing pompous convictions on matters which they deem dear to the dear old constituents.

Something ought to be done about it. There ought to be a law. There ought to be some way to take the tremble out of the boots of the broadcasters when they cast their eyes upon the national political scene. There would be more interest in the national political scene presented interestingly.

Nothing comes to the nation's armchairs from Washington but speeches and speeches and always more speeches. Day after day, night after night, Senator Whosis or Representative Whatnot or another member of national officialdom spouts a piece—invariably a harmless little piece all wrapped up in weasel words—into the loudspeakers. A nation listens and yawns and turns the dial to jazz.

Can't the radio inject a little life into Washington radio? Must it always be dry and droning? Are not the broadcasters able to find room on the air for a national town-crier who will be in fact a town-crier?

Must they, in this great debunking age, continue to approach officialdom with salaam, to treat it when it is treated at all, as if it were something sacred? Isn't it possible for them to engage the services of an entertaining chronicler, an expert tongue-wagger, who can lift the curtain on the human side of Washington life as it is lifted by the correspondents in the newspapers?

What the armchair public likes to know is the latest tempest in the Gann-Roosevelt teapot? Does Herbert Hoover ever get any mail from Calvin Coolidge? What does Andrew Mellon do in his spare time? Who is now the best poker player on Capitol Hill? Does Borah still ride a horse in Rock Creek Park? What is the favorite Negro story of Pat Harrison? Who is the best dancer in the Senate? What does Hoover think of crooners or of radio ballyhooters at 10-minute intervals? Or does he think of them?

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

Senator James J. Davis and Pennsylvanians are likely to get an earful tonight when Senator Gerald P. Nye opens the sluice gates on "Large Expenditures in Political Campaigns." Senator Nye is bombarding Senator Davis right now for an alleged expenditure of $750,000 in the state election. He threatens to unseat the Pennsylvanian by resolution in the Senate some time next week. For the whole story, tune WJAS at 9:30.

Ever wonder what announcers do between station standbys? Some of them read books, others study tomorrow's law case, still others try a hand at prose and poetry. But the demon team of Webber and McGee at WCAE gather their wits and try to outshine each other on the brilliance of their next announcement.

On a ginger ale program last night Fred said:

"This sparkling bit of music is coming to you through WCAE in Pittsburgh."

DO YOU KNOW—

That most of the NBC pages are college students?

That KDKA has been selected as the official station for every expedition of any consequence? Tonight at 11:15 they hurl messages to the Matto Gross explorers on their way to Brazil.

That Beethoven's most famous symphony, his fifth, was never given an explanation by the composer? The motive is believed to be of man's conquest with Destiny. Walter Damrosch plays it in its entirety on WCAE at 9.

That Edna Wallace Hopper, the "perennial flapper" at age 60, has signed to do two more broadcasts a week, giving her one of radio's busiest schedules? She's to be heard on KDKA Wednesday at 3 o'clock in addition to her WCAE talks.

That Charles Wakefield Cadman's new song, "Glory," is to have its debut at 4 this afternoon through WEAF-WCAE? Mr. Cadman was born in Duquesne; he is now in Hollywood.

BAD AUTO LIGHT DRIVE NABS 250

Two hundred and fifty motorists are scheduled for hearings in Traffic Court as a result of a police crusade against drivers operating automobiles with defective lights.

Each driver whose machine had but one headlight or no tail light was served with a summons by a score of motorcycle patrolmen who began the drive in various sections of the city last night. Hearings of accused drivers will begin Monday and continue through the week.

CRAFTON SEEKS PARKING BAN

A 60-day trial of no-parking regulations on the west side of Oakwood road between Crafton boulevard and Craftmont avenue, was requested by the Better Traffic Committee of Public Safety Director James M. Clark yesterday. The committee's action was prompted by the hazardous curves on Oakwood road, a 20-foot thoroughfare, and a direct route to Washington and Carnegie.

Stolen Gems Given For Garage Repairs

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Jan. 10.—Jewelry stolen from E. G. Teets, Rochester, by a man who posed as a prospective roomer, was posted by the alleged thief as a forfeit with Hughes McClure, garage owner, for $11 repairs on an auto.

When McClure read in a newspaper the jewelry had been stolen, he called Chief of Police Robert Compton and turned the loot over to the officer.

Woman Falls Dead Of Heart Disease

Mrs. Anna Nau, 58, of 1521 East street, fell dead late yesterday while walking in East street, near East North avenue, according to the coroner's report. At the Allegheny General Hospital death was attributed to heart disease.

WIFE AWARDED ESTATE CLAIM

The claim of May Salt Olbum that she was the common law life of Mack Olbum, North Side furniture dealer, who was drowned in the Allegheny River last spring, has been upheld, and as a result she will receive one-third of the $40,000 estate.

Olbum left no will, and after his death letters of administration were granted his brother, Aaron Olbum. Later Attorney James F. Callahan, representing Mary Salt, filed a petition with Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, claiming that she was the common law wife of Olbum. She lives near Franklin, where Olbum had a summer home on the river, near which he was drowned when a motor boat upset.

A hearing was held by Deputy Register of Wills Henry Erisman, Jr., who has handed down a decree revoking the letters of administration issued to the brother, and supporting the woman's contention. Witnesses had told of being at a reunion in 1926 at which a common law ceremony was performed for the couple, and a property deed bearing both their signatures was offered. Letters of administration will be issued to the woman.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative safe and pleasant. Just one Olive Tablet at bedtime will relieve you. They help nature. The bowels and liver then act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a dark brown mouth, bad breath, a dull, tired feeling, sick headache, torpid liver, constipation, you should find quick, safe and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

$300 CASH PRIZES AUTO SHOW CONTEST 200 SHOW Tickets

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph co-operating with the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers' Association, is donating these prizes for the best answers and slogans.

Here is the Sun-Telegraph Automobile Puzzle Contest, based on passenger cars to be exhibited in the forthcoming annual Automobile Show to be held at Motor Square Garden, January 17 to 24, inclusive.

One or two puzzle pictures, in each of which will be concealed the name of an automobile and in each of which are hidden several words, will be published every day in the daily and Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

Readers of the Sun-Telegraph are invited to find the names of the automobiles and to name the hidden words in each puzzle and send them to the Auto Show Contest Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, 612 Grant street, together with a good slogan, descriptive of the Automobile Show. YOU MUST SEND ALL YOUR ANSWERS AT THE SAME TIME IN ONE ENVELOPE AT THE COMPLETION OF THE CONTEST. ACCURACY, NEATNESS AND CLEVERNESS OF SLOGAN WILL BE CONSIDERED IN AWARDING THE PRIZES.

Prizes totaling $300 in gold and 200 show tickets are to be awarded the winners in the contest. Be sure to put your name and address with the slogan at the top of the first page. Your name should appear on each page you send in.

The final pictures will be published January 15. All answers must be in the hands of the Auto Show Contest Editor no later than noon, Saturday, January 17. The winners will be announced at the Automobile Show, Monday evening, January 19, and in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph January 20.

At various times during the contest, the names of passenger cars to be exhibited at the show will be printed. From this list contestants are to pick the names of the cars.

CONTESTANTS ARE NOT TO SEND IN ANSWERS UNTIL THE FINAL PUZZLE PICTURES HAVE BEEN PRINTED. THEN SEND THEM IN ALL TOGETHER AT THE SAME TIME. WRITE THE NAMES OF THE CARS ON SEPARATE SHEETS OF PAPER WITH THE HIDDEN WORDS OF EACH PICTURE IN THE ORDER IN WHICH THE PICTURES APPEARED.

Your slogan must accompany the answers. It may be either rhyme or prose and should be applicable to the Automobile Show. It must be short, snappy and clever. Remember, it is an important factor in deciding the winners.

Any person is eligible to enter this contest except employes of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph or members of their families.

The contest started December 28. If you have missed any of the puzzles you can get back copies of the Sun-Telegraph by addressing the circulation department. Send three cents for daily papers or 10 cents for Sunday's, or the equivalent in postage stamps.

LIST OF PRIZES

For the best list of correct auto names, discovered mistakes, and the cleverest slogan, the following prizes will be awarded:

FIRST PRIZE—$100 in gold.
SECOND PRIZE—$50 in gold.
THIRD PRIZE—$25 in gold.
FIVE PRIZES of $10 each, $50 in gold.
Fifteen prizes of $5 each, $75 in gold.
And 100 prizes of two tickets each, good any afternoon at the Auto Show.

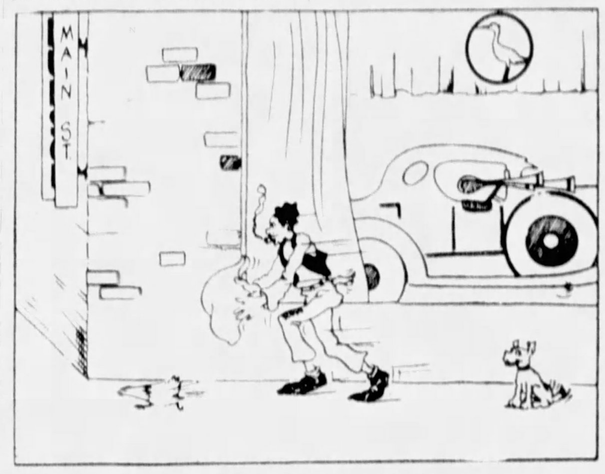
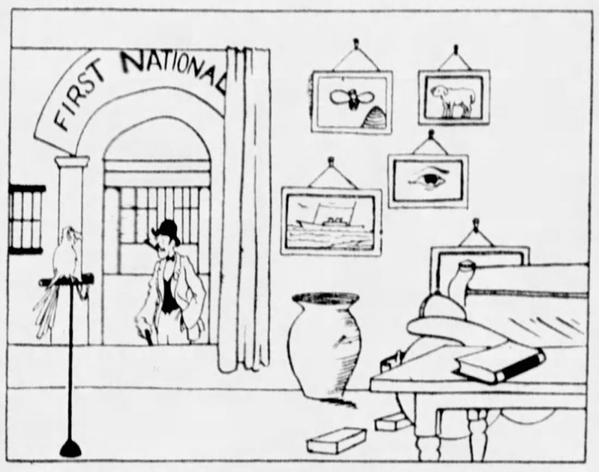
Auburn	LaSalle
Austin	Lincoln
Buick	Marmon
Cadillac	Nash
Chevrolet	Oakland
Chrysler	Oldsmobile
Cord	Packard
DeSoto	Pierce-Arrow
Dodge	Plymouth
Duesenberg	Pontiac
Essex	Reo
Ford	Rolls-Royce
Franklin	Studebaker
Graham	Willys-Knight
Hudson	Willys
Hupmobile



No. 15—The name of a make of automobile partially appears in this picture, but you will have to look carefully to detect it.

The artist has also illustrated four objects, the names of which begin with the same letter as the name of the car and end with the same letter as the name of the car.

Name those objects after you have guessed the make of automobile.



No. 16—This is an interesting puzzle. The pictures on the wall each represent a letter of the alphabet. The four letters, when discovered, will spell the name of a make of automobile—with the last letter missing. You will have to guess that letter.

Having discovered the name of the car, find four objects, the names of which begin and end with the same letters as the name of the car.

BEGINNING NEXT MONDAY

Classes in History Will come to Attention!

$3,000.00 IN CASH PRIZES

Pershing's Own Story

READERS of the Sun-Telegraph are invited to follow this story from the very start—make it a daily study. Spread throughout the publication of the story a set of ten test questions pertaining to dates and episodes chronicled in the narrative will be published. Sun-Telegraph readers will be asked to submit their answers to these questions, based on information found in the story as it will appear in this newspaper, and also write a letter on "What is the most important episode chronicled in the Pershing memoirs published in the Sun-Telegraph and why?"—the letter to be of 200 words or less. This letter is included as a part of the contest because friends of General Pershing, and others who have read advance proofs of this dramatic narrative, claim that many of his statements will start much in the way of controversy.

Three thousand dollars in cash prizes are offered by the Sun-Telegraph to the readers who form this great class in history and who submit the correct or most nearly correct sets of answers and the best letters. A special board of competent judges, none of whom will be employes of the Sun-Telegraph, will be appointed to examine the answers submitted and make the awards.

The Sun-Telegraph readers who join this class in history will be divided into six sub-classes, as follows:

CLASS NO. 1—Grade School Children.
CLASS NO. 3—College Students.
CLASS NO. 4—School Teachers, Members of the Faculty of Schools and Colleges, Clergymen, and Members of Religious Orders.
CLASS NO. 5—Members of the American Legion and Other Organizations That Include World War Veterans.
CLASS NO. 6—All Other Readers of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

TROUBLESOME BASEBALL RULE KILLED

ONE CHANGE IN the baseball rules for the coming season which will be welcomed by umpires and league officials in particular as meaning the end of a general nuisance is the elimination of the "momentary catch." John A. Heydler, president of the National League, has long advocated the wiping out of that regulation, and the decision of the rules committee to abolish it is gratifying not only to him, but to all other loop heads and the arbiters under them to whom it has been a source of continual trouble.

John A. Heydler

The rule was that which provided that a fair or foul fly should be considered caught and the batter retired if the fielder held it "momentarily." That put it up to the umpires to determine the length of a moment if, as has happened often, the fielder dropped the ball after apparently catching it. The batting side would claim that the ball had been muffed, and the club in the field would contend that it had been held momentarily, or long enough to constitute a catch.

AS A RESULT the umpires were frequently in hot water, and wrangles resulted, no matter which way they decided. If such disputes were carried to league headquarters, as happened in one memorable instance in the National League when the Cubs protested a Giant victory because Umpire Bill Byron declared a batter out after Ross Young dropped the ball in a somersault catch, the officials could do nothing but uphold the umps as only a question of judgment was involved. The fielder must now hold the ball or it will be ruled no catch.

"The thing was always a farce," says President Heydler. "Either a ball is caught or it isn't caught. If a fielder runs a long way for a ball, gets his hands on it, takes a few steps and drops it, why he simply doesn't catch it, that's all. A fielder is expected to hold the ball, whether his momentum carries him past the spot where he reached it, or whether he crashes into a fence. Those are but the natural hazards of the game and must be taken into account."

THE CHANGING OF another rule will surprise many fans probably, for the reason that they never knew any such regulation existed. The alteration will give the manager of a club the right to address the umpire on the field.

That may sound like a joke to many baseball followers who have seen umpires' decisions protested countless times by the manager of both contending clubs, with the umps carrying on long arguments with them. And any of the players has appeared to have the same right.

UNDER THE RULES, however, it was all out of order. The manager of a club was not privileged to address the umpire, nor was anybody else on the club except the captain. And even the latter was not supposed to open his mouth about a decision unless it happened to be one in which he thought a rule had been misinterpreted. The rule until now has provided that the captain alone should have the right to protest a dicision and seek its reversal on the ground that it was in conflict with a section of the rules. This will be changed for next season so as to give the manager the same privilege. It won't mean any difference. They've all been assuming that right, anyhow.

THAT BERT METZGER, among other stars, will be lost to the Notre Dame eleven by graduation before next season, though he has played only two years of varsity football, is made certain by an official announcement from the South Bend school.

Bert Metzger

Some fans have been under the impression that because the sensational 154-pound guard had played only two years he would be available for the 1931 season, but Metzger will be graduated in June and has played his last game of college football.

THE OFFICAL BULLETIN of graduations shows that 14 Notre Dame players will receive their diplomas. Seven forwards and the same number of backs will be lost. The forwards who will depart are Capt. Tom Conley, Johnny O'Brien and George Vik, ends; Metzger and Tom Kassis, guards, and Frank Leahy and Dick Donoghue, tackles.

The backfield men who have worn the Gold and Blue for the last time are Frank Carideo, Marty Brill, Larry Mullins, Bucky O'Connor, Clarence Kaplan, Al Howard and Bernie Leahy.

NO MATTER HOW good they may look in England, modern British fighters just don't seem to click when they get into American rings. Jack (Kid) Berg and a few others excepted. None of them has shaped up better on paper or in training than Len Harvey, yet in his first test in this country last night, a 12-round bout in New York, he lost the decision to Vince Dundee. Perhaps Harvey will do better later when he gets his legs under him in his American invasion, but his failure to defeat Dundee, who looked like anything but a world-beater in his bout with Buck McTiernan here recently, sends his stock down quite a bit for the present. The result was a credit to the boxing game at that, as showing, to the surprise of many, no doubt, that it could be honest at a time when certain interests appeared intent on building up Harvey for a successful start and a big money-making tour. It's a Credit to Harvey, too, that he didn't pick a push-over in order to get off on the right foot.

WITH THE ANNOUNCEMENT of the death of Wayne (Big) Munn, former heavyweight wrestling champion, boxer and football player, comes a bulletin telling of the passing of another prominent sports figure of far earlier days. Bobby Dobbs, once-famous Negro lightweight fighter and globe trotter, died at the age of 72 in Charleston, S. C., after a long illness.

Present-day boxing fans know less of Dobbs than of Munn, but in his time Bobby was one of the best lightweights in the world and also one of the most durable of any era. He was past 52 when he knocked out Dick Green in 16 rounds in his last fight, which took place in Berlin in 1910. Among other achievements he defeated Joe Gans, Young Peter Jackson, Kid Lavigne and Duck Burge and fought a draw with Joe Walcott. He fought in all parts of the world, and at the end of his active ring career conducted boxing schools in Berlin, Budapest, Venice and Vienna.

THEY'RE NEVER TOO smart to slip. The brainiest athletes sometimes are guilty of mental stumbles. Barry Wood, Harvard's star quarterback and captain-elect, was a triple threat in football last fall. He ran, kicked and passed. He is a drop-kicker and as a scoring play he would sometimes fake a drop kick for a field goal and then throw a forward pass instead.

Barry Wood

Wood always put on a good show to deceive his opponents when he intended to take the drop kick. He would measure the distance carefully, pick the proper spot, clean the cleats of his shoes, and, finally, toss aside his headgear.

IT IS RELATED that when Wood tried the play against Yale he was surprised to find himself hit and thrown for a 10-yard loss before he could get his pass away. He did not realize that he had tipped off his own fake when he threw aside his headgear, but that was the explanation. Yale scouts had discovered that Barry never discarded his headgear when he actually drop-kicked, but that he always tossed it away when he was going to fake the drop kick and throw a forward pass instead. Wood merely overdid his acting on the fake play and in doing so tipped it off to the Yale defense in his over-eagerness to deceive the foe.

GAMES TONIGHT
London at Pittsburgh.
Syracuse at Cleveland.
Detroit at Buffalo.

By CARL W. SHATTO

The London Tecumsehs, the boys who helped the Yellow Jackets to introduce International League hockey here, return to Duquesne Garden tonight for the first time since the season inaugural last November 13.

The Canadians spoiled the local opener by garnering a 3-0 decision in that battle of long ago, but the many radical changes instituted in the local lineup since that time results in the Tecumsehs rating the "under dogs" in their return engagement.

The constant Pittsburgh improvement is reflected in the scores of Pittsburgh-London battles. The Tecumsehs had to rally to win, 3-2, in an overtime fray at London on December 12, and they were whitewashed, 2-0, by the Schooley skaters there last Wednesday.

London has made certain lineup changes since the lid-lifter, but in the matter of improvement the Canadians are running the Jackets a poor second, and their fourth meeting is likely to result in the evening of the season series.

YANKOSKI RETURNS

One of the invaders who will command considerable attention is Steve Yankoski, who was at defense for Pittsburgh the last time London played here. Steve was sent to the Tecumsehs in exchange for Leo Reise. Toots Holway, former Pirate, is another member of the London backfield well known to local fans. In Roy Goldsworthy, star wing, and their leading goal-getter, the visitors boast one of the fastest men playing hockey in any league today.

Both the Jackets and Tecumsehs regard tonight's battle as one of exceptional importance. If the Tecumsehs win they will regain fifth place in the standings, the spot that they yielded to Pittsburgh last Wednesday. If the Jackets win they probably will advance to within a half game of fourth place and possibly a half game of the third notch. Cleveland and Detroit at present share the last play-off berth, and both are in action tonight. Should either team bow in defeat a Pittsburgh victory will move the locals up to a single point of fourth position, and in the event that both lose, third place will be only a half stride away from the up-and-coming Schooley squad.

RESERVES STRONG

Neither Albie Cox, star goalie, nor Mickey McGuire, capable center, will be in uniform tonight, but Coach Charles Reid has such capable replacements available that their absence causes no uneasiness. Eddie Rodden, who has not performed here since he was puchased from the New York Rangers, about a week ago, will team with Milt Halliday and Lloyd McIntyre on the front line of which McGuire heretofore has been the third member, and Bud Fisher will continue to sub for Cox. Rodden gave an impressive exhibition in London last Wednesday, and Fisher's play in the nets has been flawless.

The last two games here attracted approximately 12,000 fans. Capacity crowds have become the rule rather than the exception, and officials of the club urge that the fans appear early so that the congestion at the gates, which resulted in delaying the start of the last two frays here, may be averted. The probable lineup:

Pittsburgh		London
Fisher	G	Stuart
Fraser	D	Holway
Berlett	D	Loughlin
Ouellette	C	Pettinger
Proudlock	W	Guenneville
Gregg	W	Greb

Indrissano Ill, Silvers to Fight Pirrone Monday

Pal Silvers, New York welterweight, has been substituted for Johnny Indrissano, of Boston, in the main bout of 10 rounds to be staged at Motor Square Garden Monday night, Matchmaker Jules Beck announced this morning. Silvers will fight Paul Pirrone, of Cleveland.

Indrissano informed Motor Square officials last night he would be unable to fight because of illness.

Silvers, who helped Len Harvey, English middleweight champ, train for his bout last night with Vince Dundee, in New York, will arrive here tomorrow morning.

Matchmaker Beck has announced the New Yorker will work out tomorrow afternoon in the Garden gym, and the public is invited to watch him. Beck, who has seen Silvers in action, praises him as a good match for Pirrone.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: A DONKEY DISCOVERED A MINE—The two prospectors, O'Rourke and Kellogg, discovered the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mine at Kellogg, Ida., while searching for their lost donkey. The animal was found standing on a great outcropping of silver lead ore, which became the location of what is claimed to be the greatest silver lead mine in the United States. The status of the donkey as the official discoverer of the mine was legally adjudicated by Judge Norman Buck, of the District Court of Idaho, in 1885. As the prospectors had only borrowed the donkey, the real owner of the animal obtained title to a half interest in this most lucrative property, which has paid a total of more than $43,000,000 in dividends to date. (Reference: New York World, February 10, 1930.) BIG BEN IS NOT THE NAME OF THE HOUSE OF PARLIAMENT CLOCK—The clock in the Tower of the House of Parliament in London derives its sobriquet, "Big Ben," from the bell which strikes the hour. That bell was christened "Saint Stephen." "Big Ben" originally was a humorous suggestions by a member of Parliament, who was impressed with the enormous size and girth of Sir Benjamin Hall, president of the Board of Public Works, who carried out the plans of the architects in 1851. In time the association of Sir Benjamin's name with the bell and clock more and more obscured the fact that the true and canonical name of both objects was "Saint Stephen." HENRY STEWART WALKED 100,000 MILES—Walking Stewart, a Scotchman, who was born in London in 1749 and died in 1821, was a man of eccentric habits. In his lifetime he walked 100,000 miles. He covered most of Asia on foot in his famous walk from London to India, besides Germany, Italy, France, Turkey and Scotland. At one time he held the post of minister to the Nabob of Arcot, and upon the ruler's death was paid a legacy of $50,000.

PITT TACKLES N.Y.U. FIVE IN EAST

By JESS CARVER.

The well-known walrus, who made little Alice's trip through Wonderland a more or less complete success, knew whereof he prattled when he observed that the time had come to speak of many things. He must have been referring to tonight's college basketball schedule, which is a heavy one indeed.

Bob Smith.

While many of our best minds are seeking in vain for a plausible excuse for the sport, the boys are going right along making hay and field goals while the moon and electric lights shine. Tonight, in the Tartan's gym, Thiel College's up and comin' Lutherans will take a poke or two at Tech's Skibo quintet.

DEFEATED GENEVA

Thiel turned in a pair of very creditable performances this week, beating Geneva in the initial upset tussle of the season Tuesday night and then chasing Duquesne Thursday, failing to catch the flying Dukes only by the narrow margin of four points. The boys played very noble basketball on both occasions, good enough to dope 'em as even choices against the Tartans tonight.

Tech has been resting for a week, save for daily practice sessions. The last time out, the boys knocked over Western Reserve in Cleveland.

LINEUP SET

Dan B. period Daugherty, and A. period L. period Walsh will officiate in tonight's encounter. In a preliminary game Ray Buckley, new freshman mentor at Carnegie, will spring his Plebe creation on a pop-eyed world opposed to the Pitt Junior College of Johnstown.

The varsity lineups:

Carnegie Tech		Thiel
Nease (C)	F	Harter
Smith	F	Clarke
Stentz	C	Frampton
Leonard	G	McCoy
Fergus	G	Bell

The Tipoff

You'll have a lot of basketball to read about over the rolls and java in the mawnin'. Pitt is in New York for a game with New York University, the Panther making a one-day stand in Gotham. Pitt, like Tech, has been resting since meeting Indiana 10 days ago.

Geneva completes a three-game invasion of the East by tackling the formidable Catholic University quintet in Washington, D. C., tonight. The Covenanters have met Gettysburg and St. Thomas to date.

Bethany hopes to follow in the hoof prints of Waynesburg by beating Deutchland Liber Alles Hermann's Penn Staters at State College tonight. State got off to a very unsuccessful start Wednesday when the Yeller Jackets put the boots to 'em.

West Virginia Wesleyan meets West Virginia at Morgantown and Washington winds up its two-game trip at Butler against the crack Paulist five of that place.

FANS BOO WIN OF DUNDEE

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Len Harvey, of England, recipient of one of the best boxing ballyhoos of the winter, seems to have convinced some 10,000 New York fans that he deserved all the kind words that have been said and written about him, but he lost his first fight here.

Harvey, making his debut at Madison Square Garden last night, lost a close decision to Vince Dundee, Baltimore middleweight, by the unanimous vote of the officials, after 12 stirring rounds. Boos rang out after the announcement of the winner.

The Englishman went to work early and floored Dundee twice in the first round, but, while the customers were still shouting for a quick knockout, he settled back into defensive boxing, and the rugged Dundee wore him down with a steady punching drive and snatched the decision with a fine last-round rally.

The Associated Press score card gave Harvey six rounds, Dundee five and called one, the sixth, even.

Right at the start, Harvey caught the Baltimorean with a lusty left hook to the head as he came in and bounced him off the canvas. Vince got up with difficulty at the count of nine and ran into another left hook. After another nine count, Dundee held and stalled his way through the round.

NOTICE, MATHER

The Mather-Fitz-Henry game scheduled for Fitz-Henry tomorrow has been called off. A death in the family of three of the players is the cause.

GOLF MOGULS OPEN CONFAB

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—The solons of golf gathered here for the annual meeting of the United States Golf Association today with the election of officers the most important stated business on hand.

Herbert H. Ramsay, of New York, was slated to become president; Rodman E. Griscom, of Merion, and Robert M. Bobby Jones' re-election as a member of the executive committee was expected to meet with no opposition.

DEMPSEY KEEPS OLD PUNCH

DALLAS, Tex., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Nearly 10,000 sports fans last night had visual proof Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight boxing champion of the world, although out of the ring more than three years, has kept the punch of the Manassa Mauler.

Jack, making his first official appearance in Dallas as referee of a wrestling match between Billy Edwards, Kansas City, Mo., and Jim O'Dowd, Chicago, resented being hit in the jaw by Edwards and retaliated with a sharp right hand wallop to the chin that sent Edwards for a double flip.

BERGER LIKELY TO SIGN

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Back from Boston, whence he journeyed to negotiate contract matters with other Brave officials, Bill McKechnie, chief of the Tribe today stated that he expected no trouble whatever in getting Outfielder Walter Berger's name on a Boston document.

Recently it was reported from Los Angeles Berger would be a confirmed holdout unless he were given a big increase in salary. The big coast leaguer was one of the homerun monarchs of the National League last season. He played for an ordinary salary, but his ringing success led to the rumor that he would be hard to sign.

"Berger wired us that the report from Los Angeles was all wrong," said McKechnie in discussing his star leftfielder and swatter.

"I don't think we will experience any big problem in getting Walter into line," continued Skipper Bill. "We have completed the work of sending out our contracts and I feel that most of them will have been signed and returned to the Boston office inside of two weeks."

With Slugger Wes Schulmerich, of the Los Angeles club, added to his roster, McKechnie expects to show a good front this year. The strong boy from the Coast, like Berger, is an outfielder. The latter showed so much class as a ball hawk in 1930 that McKechnie may use him in centerfield with the new players performing in the left pasture.

GOAL IN GIRLS' GAME

MOTORS BATTLE CLAN DOUGLAS TODAY

By TOM BIRKS

Clan Douglas will be fighting to [illegible] the Central League soccer [illegible] this afternoon when it meets Pedigree Motors at the Westinghouse High School field. It is one of the outstanding battles of the season. Jimmy Moreman, without a doubt is the best center forward in the loop and will prove dangerous to the Clan defense. Thom Douglas inside left is one of the most prominent players ever developed in the district.

Douglas needs to win to get in trim for the West Penn semi-final next Saturday. Foster and McDonald are the best backs in local soccer. Craig and Stirling also are real halfbacks.

The Motors are weak on defense. Jimmy Moreman often has been taken from the front line to try to bolster the last line of defense, which took the kick out of the attack.

Two other games will be played in the loop, the Celtics going to Crafton and the Rovers opposing Mesta Machine at Homestead.

Manager Maneris is booking an exhibition game at Morgan tomorrow to take the place of the Dunlevy game. He wants the team on edge for the Shamrock game of the following week.

I. K. S. MEETS MERCHANTS AT CHARLEROI

By JULIUS LEVIN.

The Manchester Community [illegible] passers, leaders in the Greater Pittsburgh League, face their hardest test of the season tonight when they invade New Wilmington to engage the crack Westminster College floor machine.

FALCONS AT COMMUNITY

North Side Community House, which shows signs of making a strong comeback in the second half of the West Penn League season, meets the South Side Falcons in the only West Penn League game tonight. St. James is at St. Joseph's in the Catholic Lyceum League.

Independent contests find the Irene Kaufmann Settlement House the attraction of the Charleroi Merchants in Charleroi, while the Goldenson Vanities seek their thirty-second straight triumph at the expense of the Kig Boots Club in Ingram.

The Penn Five knocked off the North Side Bucks, 41-22, in the West Penn League; I. K. S. Reserves lost their first game of the season to Trinity Cathedral, 29-28, in an extra-period contest, and Homewood Y. beat Sewickley Y, 47-24, in the Warner Institutional League, and I. K. S. beat the Ome Club, of East Liverpool, 41-24, in the important battles of last night.

Other league games resulted in Goodwill tripping the Caros, 35-25, L. J. Hannans downing P. N. A., 37-30 and Mt. Washington tripping Soho Community, 54-22, in the Metropolitan League; Kingsley House beating Downtown Y, 31-27, in the amateur loop and St. Wendelin's copping from St. Casimir's, 39-21, in the Lyceum League.

CADETS ON TOP

Grand Cadets topped I. F. Burkes, 27-21; Falcons beat the Briskeys, 44-23; Carnegie won from N. Lafayette, 22-20, and West View tripped Edgeworth, 14-9, in the Junior League. Duquesne won from New Kensington, 47-30; Braddock toppled East Pittsburgh, 30-15, and Homestead beat Pittsburgh, 14-12, in the S. E. U. League.

BIG MUNN, MAT STAR, DIES

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Wayne H. (Big) Munn, the mastodontic wrestler who crashed his way to a brief reign in 1925 as claimant of the world heavyweight mat title, died here yesterday.

Wayne Munn

Bright's disease ended the career of the 35-year-old former University of Nebraska athlete. Six years ago in Convention Hall at Kansas City, Munn tossed Ed (Strangler) Lewis, out of the ring, won the match before 15,000 spectators and was acclaimed the leading heavyweight grappler of the world.

It was January 8, 1925, when Munn dethroned Lewis, then generally rated as the champion. A little more than three months later April 15, Munn lost to the middle-aged Stanislaus Zbyszko, in Philadelphia, and never again reached the top.

Munn, commissioned a lieutenant while serving in the World War, died at the Fort Sam Houston Base Hospital. He came here a year ago for treatment, became seriously sick about 10 days ago and for several days before his death physicians despaired of saving his life. He had engaged in the oil business in recent years.

DRAWS, KAYOS AT MOOSE

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

A tough and how tough! 10-round bout between Frankie Chatterton, of Cleveland, and Eddie Brannon, Negro, of the Hill, at the Moose Temple, last night, wound up in a referee's decision of a draw when the two judges disagreed, Judge Frank Brown voted for Chatterton and Judge Frank Hogan for Brannon, with Referee Al Grayber hitting in between.

The battle was as unspectacular as it was hard fought, with Chatterton doing most of his work at close quarters, where he kept pounding the body with his right and occasionally shifting and whacks at the body.

BRANNON FORCES FIGHT

Brannon, on the other hand, fought both at long range and in close and did most of the forcing and really had an edge. He carried the first, third, fourth, fifth, eighth and ninth rounds, with Chatterton winning the second, seventh and tenth and the sixth even. Eddie hurt his opponent in the ninth and made him hold on, but Chatterton came out with a Garrison finish in the tenth, only to fade away to a whisper near the final bell.

Both took so much punishment that it wouldn't even have been any fun for either one to have been declared the victor.

It was their second clash, Brannon having won a newspaper decision over the slow-moving, but always-punching, blonde at East Liverpool, O., last summer. Chatterton weighed 140¼ pounds and Brannon 137 at 3 p. m. yesterday.

SEMI ALSO DRAW

The semi-final also was called a draw, with the officials splitting three ways, U. S. Carpentier, of New Kensington, and Billy (Muscles) Sholes, of the North Side, were the principals, and it was their third meeting, with Sholes having won the first two. Last night he started off like a winner again, but then became wild and missed most of his swings and Carpentier handily boxed his way to a winning margin, which he didn't get officially. Sholes was dazed and punched partly through the ropes onto the ring platform just before the end.

Judge Brown voted for Carpentier, with Judge Hogan picking Sholes and Referee Grayber voting the dead heat. Sholes was three-quarters of a pound overweight at 135¾, while Carpentier scaled 132.

KNOCKOUTS END PRELIMS

The first two bouts were short and sweet, ending in first round knockouts. Marcus Noll, Negro southpaw, of the Hill, 151, dropped Red Miller, of Cleveland, for a count of nine with a left to the body and then felled him again for the full count with another one, the second bout lasting only 1 minute 34 seconds.

In the opener, Terry Waner, of the North Side, 128, opened with a rush that almost smothered Sammy Burns, Negro, of the Hill, 128½, and then was knocked out after 2 minutes 48 seconds of the round. He was down three times from rights to the jaw, the first two times for counts of nine, and he failed to beat the full count on the third trip.

DOUBLE WINDUP CARDED

A. C. Couch and Tommy Grant were the timers, Ray Eberle did the announcing and Dr. M. R. Goldman was the commission physician. Grayber refereed all of the bouts. The crowd was fair in size.

A double windup card was announced for next Friday night, with Jimmy Kelly boxing Young Rudy and Johnny Warner meeting Mose Butch in 10-rounders.

Between Rounds

It's Jimmy Reilly, and not Jimmy Riley, of McKeesport, if you please. Reilly meets Young Bordelli, of New Kensington, in the opening bout on the Motor Square Garden card Monday night, the latter taking the place of Gus Brittner, who is under suspension. The fans are looking for a treat from Jimmy, who gave them a fancy exhibition in beating Steve Senich at the Garden New Year's Night.

Paul Pirrone, of Cleveland, and Pal Silvers, of New York, who box the windup at the Garden, will work out in local gyms tomorrow afternoon. They are due to arrive in town in the morning.

Willie Cubic, Negro bantamweight, of Newark, N. J., wants to show here. He has boxed Marty Gold, Davy Adelman, Pancho Dencio, Black Bill, Harry Hill, Willie LaMorte, Johnny Vacca and others of note. Babe Culnan and Hughey Gartland, of Newark, manage him.

Fight Results

At Moose Temple, Frankie Chatterton and Eddie Brannon drew (referee's decision), 10 rounds; U. S. Carpentier and Muscle Sholes drew (referee's decision), 6 rounds. Marcus Noll knocked out Red Miller, 1 round; Sammy Burns knocked out Terry Waner, 1 round.

At Erie, Maxie Strub knocked out (technically) Robby Mayo, 8 rounds; Ray Collins defeated Sam Secco, 10 rounds; Jack Sosi and Joe Mancini drew, 6 rounds; Frankie Sweeney knocked out (technically) Marvin Hitchcock, 2 rounds.

Knock That Cold In A Jiffy

Relief Now Almost Before You Know It

If you want quick relief from a cold, go back to first principles and use something you know does the business—don't start "trying" a lot of fancy ideas or remedies. Even a "little" cold is too dangerous to take chances on.

Get Hill's Cascara Quinine. A scientific formula made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold in a jiffy, not to cure a hundred different things.

Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all. Soon those mean, aching pains in head and body begin to go; the cold breaks up; poisons leave your system. Almost before you know it, you feel like a new person.

If it doesn't do that, your money back. Get a box now. You'll be surprised at the speed with which it works. Costs only a few cents.

MAX MAY MEET CARNERA

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—It has become a fistic axiom that a dozen conferences equal one heavyweight championship bout. So far the boys have used up only two or three of them quoting the situation revolving about Max Schmeling, Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling.

Schmeling is champion, everywhere but New York state. Sharkey has been cast by the New York Athletic Commission in the role that usually precipitates a row of defending champion, and seems to be close to the favorite choice as the opponent. The challenger.

Second — The Hearst Milk Fund is attempting to make the same match somewhere outside of New York, probably in Detroit with Cleveland and Philadelphia as possibilities.

Third—In event that Stribling balks at terms the Milk Fund would shift to a match between Schmeling and Primo Carnera.

Fourth — Madison Square Garden is not enthusiastic, but willing to match Sharkey and Stribling in New York with championship recognition by the state commission awaiting the winner.

The Milk Fund [illegible] Schmeling is tied up [illegible] sentiment and writers [illegible] holds the whip hand at present and seems likely to have the [illegible] say where any match [illegible] Schmeling is concerned. [illegible] Stribling, the Southerner's [illegible] manager conferred with Milk Fund promoters last night, but a hitch developed over [illegible] of the title bout. It was a result of this disagreement [illegible] possibility of a switch to Carnera was [illegible].

W. VA. CHECKS ON ELIGIBILITY

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Officials of the West Virginia Athletic Conference devoted themselves to effecting stricter enforcement of eligibility rules at their meeting here yesterday. Any fireworks that might have been anticipated regarding the emphasis placed on football were restricted to an address by the Fairmont State Normal president before a luncheon club.

All conference teams hereafter must obey the eligibility rules and for several days before his death, while playing non-conference foes, as the result of one amendment adopted despite some opposition.

Butler Tells Duke About Calvert Jewels

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

The day before her marriage to Jim Tracy, wealthy Connie Calvert learns through Duke Garson, underworld character, of the existence of a half-sister, Kitty, by her father's secret first marriage. Kitty, a produce of the slums, demands $100,000 for her silence. Connie, glad to have found her sister, offers to take her home. Kitty refuses. Connie is favorably impressed by Duke's magnetism. When Jim objects to her interest in Kitty, Connie breaks her engagement. She realizes Jim is mainly interested in her money and that she does not love him. Connie tells her mother about Kitty. Connie sees Kitty and learns of her laborious daily struggle for existence. Kitty goes home with Connie and is welcomed by Mrs. Calvert. When Jim visits he takes an interest in Kitty. Connie, believing Jim a philanderer, is concerned for Kitty. Kitty admits that she likes Jim, but is afraid that he does not like her. Connie warns her of his selfishness. Connie's distrust of Jim causes her to seek Garson's aid. Duke does not agree with Connie's views. He admits that he is more interested in her than in Kitty. He agrees to stop at Calvert's for a few days. He tells Connie that he is an adviser to criminals.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXX.

A strange silence fell between Duke and Connie as they sat on the rim of the lily pool. Disturbing thoughts, a sense of danger was in her mind; a fate, a sequence of advance beyond her choice, had brought her mysteriously into this dubious association with him. From the beginning she had sensed a sinister something about him and now it was definite. He was, for better or worse, allied with crime and dishonesty. Morally, his endeavors rubbed her the wrong way; more, her good taste was violated. Never before had she realized so clearly how precious was her heritage of conventional respectability. In her own set if there were those who dropped away from the code, their failing were trivialities compared with this other ugly revelation of human wickedness.

His Choice

Crime, the harsh, cold brutality of it, filled her with repugnance—it was scarcely possible for her to conceive herself even so remotely connected with it as her friendship with Duke Garson implied.

He had confessed so much already to her that she wanted, before they finished, to know all about it.

"These crimes—do you profit from them? I mean, do you make a living out of such debased creatures?"

Garson smiled a little and shook his head slightly.

"The policeman, the prison keeper, the hangman are getting their bit for what they do to the criminal. Fortunately I am better off. No, I don't make a penny out of crime. If I cared to I could probably make a very large income, but it is not necessary. I have some resources of my own."

"Yet you associate with criminals from choice?"

From choice, yes. I used to be respectable myself. Approximately. I was as well thought of as your Mr. Tracy, for instance. It bored me to death."

He looked at her challengingly, before his eyes she was beautiful and somehow smug. So far she had revealed little of her real self to him; what he saw was her provocative brown eyes with their golden glints, her clear, fresh skin and the chestnut-auburn sheen of her hair. If within her there lurked a crude vitality it was marked by an outer refinement of beauty, a facade of cultivated poise.

Speaks Frankly

"You don't approve of me, of course, and I don't know but that my presence here makes you uncomfortable," he told her frankly. "I outrage your sense of conventions because I am so different from your friends. A man with original ideas—or any idea at all—is rather a bull in a china shop, for most people. I fancy you are a bit regretful now that you invited me to stay over. Even Kitty, after she begins to take on the gloss, will probably find me odd, at least. I won't be at all offended if it would make you more comfortable for me to go right on back to town without waiting for dinner. Now that you know something as to what kind of a person I am, please don't feel obligated to have me up here. I really am different, you know."

Her eyes flashed and she smiled at him a little mockingly.

"Also, you're silly. Of course, I want you to stay. You're not going to corrupt me in the least. It does seem strange to me, though, that a man of your intelligence should throw in his lot with—well, Tenth avenue. You haven't told me why you did it."

"I don't know, for certain, myself—the natural inclination, I suppose," he remarked. "Are you sure you want me to stay?"

"Oh, positively!"

They rose and moved back toward the house and dinner. As they walked, he was so close beside her that she seemed to feel virile radiations from his body; she could imagine him charged with electrical energy, the vital emanation of a tiger. Yes, that was what he reminded her of: A tiger, a tame, civilized tiger with all of his jungle energies pent up. There was a ruthless something about him—a mental quality which, in a weaker man, might have been savagery.

Impresses Her Mother

"Haven't you ever felt," she asked him slowly, "that only a hair's breadth divided you from crime? Haven't you ever pictured yourself stepping across the line and doing a lot of things contrary to all that we have been taught is right and just?"

"Who ha-n't?" he asked, coolly.

Connie's mother, at dinner, was pleasantly impressed by Duke Garson. For her own part, Connie was relieved to find that his underworld had left no visible social stamp upon her guest. Not only did he talk like a gentleman, but he achieved the even more difficult feat of dining like one. Not that she cared a hoot herself, but her mother, with the lingering formality of another generation, was less tolerant of small matters. When the meal was finished Connie's mother went upstairs and, for a few minutes, Connie was with her. Returning down stairs, she did not at once see Garson, and then looking into the dining room at random, she saw him standing by a window in close conversation with Higgins, the butler. Higgins glanced up and saw her; for an instant she thought he looked startled, and then he moved rapidly away about the business of clearing the table.

Garson came toward her, half smiling.

"Higgins tells me," he said, quietly, "that your mother, very carelessly, keeps a rope of pearls worth around $40,000 in her bedroom. Really, Miss Calvert, this places me in a very difficult position. Here is Higgins, an old friend of mine, and here you are, also a friend. Poor Higgins—what a strain he has been under."

DAILY TRUE STORY Breeding Comes Out

The first grey streaks of coming dawn had shot themselves across the sky overhead, as seen through the tops of the giant, old chestnut oaks which guarded the mountain trail around Whiteside. It was still dark along the pathway, which made difficult traveling for anyone but those who were familiar with the many sharp turns and treacherous lodge passages of the narrow way. Two light snows had fallen since cool weather had come, and the last one had melted away, under the sunshine of a few warm days, and an oddly pungent odor came up out of the ravines from decaying fungus and fronds. Old Joe Pelfrey sniffed the odor on the morning air with a peculiar sense of gratification as he crept along the Devil's Courthouse trail, his rifle slung to his back, and the staff in his hand feeling out the sharp edges of the cliffs for the more absolute safety of his footsteps. Old Joe chuckled as he walked along. It was a fine morning for the enterprise in which he was engaged. The tang of the air was quite to his notion, and the stillness of the forest told of an ideal condition for the success of his efforts. Pelfrey halted at a turn in the trail, whence, had there been daylight enough for it, he could have gazed down through the tops of the giant trees just over the precipice upon which he stood.

Shoots Turkey

"The dinged Land Company, I reckon, is sound asleep about this time o'day," he chuckled, as he caressed the stock of his gun with his right hand. "Want to own the earth, I opine, wi' the turkey an' bear, an' all the other varmits throwed in for good measure. Hm, turkey an' ole Joe was here a long time afore land companies an' game wardens, by cracky!"

Once more he crept forward, and a few minutes later emerged upon a slight eminence at the Devil's Courthouse. Here, there was a very narrow little plateau, and against the cliff arising above it Old Joe had arranged a turkey blind, into which he dodged, as the faint sound of distant wings in flight fell upon his acute ear. He had put out turkey bait on the plateau; and a magnificent gobbler was making his way among the trees for an early morning feed. Growing daylight now revealed objects at some distance, and the muzzle of Joe's rifle was thrust forward in a position from which there need be but slight movement to cover the entire field of the turkey's feeding. For a long time the gobbler hesitated on a branch of an old dead pine, before sweeping down to the feast which had been spread before him. At last the coast seemed clear, and his feet settled upon the rocks.

A sharp "crack" rang out on the morning air, and echo ricocheted the sound from one crag to another until it had died away down the ravine. Old Joe Pelfrey chuckled with deep satisfaction. Emerging from the blind he seized upon his kill, tied the cock's feet together, and slung the bird across his shoulder.

"No less'n 25 pound, if ye weigh an ounce, by cracky!" Pelfrey mused as he struggled forward to the trail with his burden. "Do't reckon it's likely Ike Dorsey hyeard that shot, an' him clean across the mountain!" Ike Dorsey had been employed by the Sledge Land Company as game warden for the range, and all shooting had been forbidden.

Joe had to stop frequently and ease his burden down from his shoulder. "It's a dinged outrage that a feller has to steal his own things. Now, them turkeys is mine by all rights o' God-a'-mighty's goodness. Been right here for more'n 80 year, an' never had to ask nobody 'bout shootin' turkey yit—an' I ain't going' to begin now, not old Joe."

"Mornin', Joe!" A man had stepped from behind a huge chestnut oak, and now stood before Pelfrey on the trail. Old Joe's knees suddenly became weak beneath his body and he tottered under his load.

"Yes, Jos' down this way lookin' about; an' I hyeared yuhr shot. 'Well,' I says to myself, 'Pelfrey never misses; so he'll be along here wi' somethin' d'rectly.'"

"What ye goin' to do about it, Ike?"

"Fust I'll take charge o' that bird—terrible load for an old man, anyhow. Pelfrey—must weigh 25? An' then, ye know, there's a penalty for shootin' these birds an' varmints 'thout permission?" Dorsey took the turkey and swung it to his own shoulder. "An' as you and me's goin' the same direction this mornin', we can keep company, I reckon?"

Praises Father

"I reckon so, Ike," agreed Pelfrey in a weak voice.

Dorsey led off, and old Joe trailed immediately behind him. There was silence for some time. At length Pelfrey spoke.

"I've hyeard say."

"He was a real man, Ike—a real man; He an' me was friends since we was babies—one never took a turn hardly 'thout to'other. Wasn't nothin' I wouldn't a done for Lige Dorsey, nor him for me, I reckon. 'Member the time, Ike—you was a leetle chap then—when Stonecyphor's bull gored yuhr daddy, an' would ha' killed 'em, if I hadn't bull-dogged the varmint an' held 'im till Stonecyphor got there with a pole?"

"No, Joe; I don't jestly remember; but I've hyeard about it from the old man many a time, 'fore he died."

"Pore old Lige! The Rheimatis got 'im, an' he suffered no end, afore he could go. All I could do was to g'over an' take him a leetle toddy onct in awhile, an' cheer 'im up a leetle."

"Yeah. The old man never forgit ye, neither."

"I know, Ike—I know. Him an' me was like brothers. Never knowed no better man than Lige Dorsey."

There was silence now for some time. There was a more distinct slump in Pelfrey's shoulders than had characterized his pose an hour before. His head was bowed, his hands dangled at his sides, and the gun stock rapped about his thighs, as he trudged along in the wake of Ike Dorsey's movements.

"Them old uns is mighty nigh all gone, Ike. Yuhr Maw, now—she's been dead these three years, I reckon?"

"Yeah, jest about."

"I 'member her a gal, Ike; an' a purtier one never was dressed in a checked frock, I'm tellin' yuh, boy!"

Returns Catch

"I've hyeard say, Maw was a purty gal when she was young."

"Them was times when we was boys an' gals. What, wi' turkey shootin's, bear shootin's and gander pullin's—an' nobody to ask nothin' about it, Ike?"

"Yeah, a whole lot."

Again silence. Without abating his pace, Pelfrey turned his head from one side to the other, gazing away down into the ravine on either side of him. It was kind of farewell look, as if the hills and the vales that he had known for 80 years were about to fade away from his gaze forever. A slight moisture befogged his vision for a moment; and when he spoke again, his voice trembled perceptibly.

"Member the time yuhr Ma was sick so long, an yuhr daddy bein' down with rheumatis, thar warn't nobody to pervide much—an' how I brung a grouse or a pheasant most every day, Ike. Thot was afore the Land Companies took over God-a'-mighty's hills an' ravines, Ike."

"Yeah, Joe; I been thinkin' 'about thet."

More silence, during which Ike shifted the turkey from one shoulder to the other, as he continued his pace. Presently the trail branched, one prong leading to the right, the other almost directly to the left. At the crotch of it Ike Dorsey paused and turned about.

"Well, Joe," he said, "you turn off here. I've gin yuh heft o' yuhr load this far, an' I got to turn off here on t' other side." He swung the turkey from his own back to Pelfrey's shoulders. "Jes' forgit I seen yuh, Joe."

In today's installment of my travelogue I just have time to read a few of the letters addressed to me by human nature lovers. I have one here from a Miss Gilhooley, of 25 East End ave., who asks—

"Is it true, or untrue, that single handed you risked your life and reputation to protect the womanhood of Africa by shooting the ferocious rhinocerosis which lives on roots, and does damage amounting annually to $5,342,232.00 and if so will you give dates and names? FRISBY CLUB.

"Miss Gilhooley, Corresponding Sec."

Well, girls, the answer to this question is, "Yes." The date was with a woman known as "Big Emma."

Now as there are no more questions, and it is getting late, I will close by reciting a small poem I have written about Africa—

Africa, Africa,
Dark as night—
What's the matter with Africa?
She's all right.

(Ladies and gentlemen, this travelogue is brought to a conclusion through the courtesy of the Swiss Cheese Corporation of Switzerland. Stand by for further announcements).

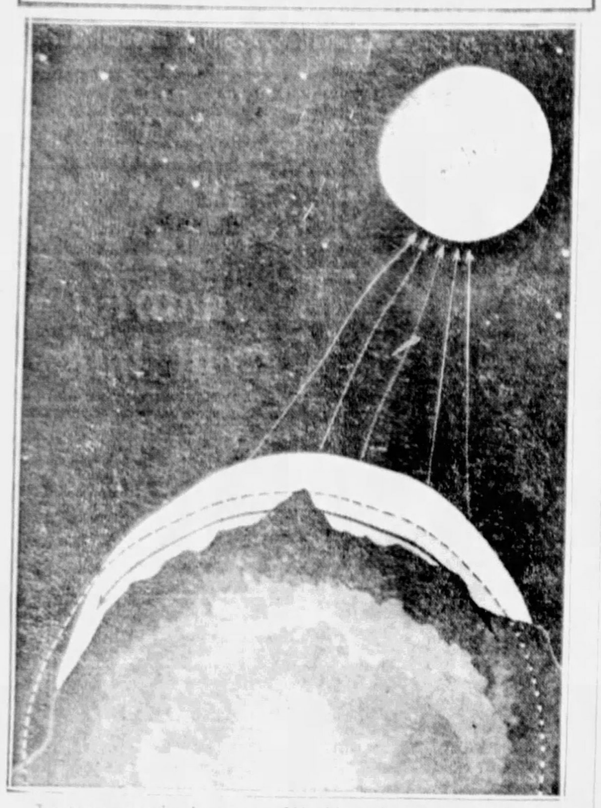
Admire This COW And Beware of Drugs



In tomorrow's American Weekly, which you will receive with the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Prof. Rene Thevenin, great French scientist, concludes his study of mankind's future. He presents beautifully colored pictures showing how the attraction of sun and moon making higher and higher tides will slow down the motion of the earth. And the day instead of being 24 hours long, will be one month or even two months in length.

The eye of science sees in the future gigantic tractors moving slowly around the earth at the equator, pulling human habitations each as big as a small village, keeping them always in the sunlight, to avoid the bitter cold of that future night.

And some men too poor to follow the sun probably will live underground, seeking the earth's eternal heat.

TWO LADIES—TWO MORALS

It is a sad future that science maps out for old Mother Earth. But fortunately it is many millions of years away. Meanwhile let us turn to the two ladies printed here, side by side, also taken from tomorrow's American Weekly. They point to two separate and important morals.

The little lady with hands clasped on her bosom should make you think and express a high resolve never to touch drugs. This, of course, is not addressed to "you" who read this, because you wouldn't think of such a thing. It is addressed to people in general.

This beautiful creature lived in Paris, and 12 years ago the gay world knew her as Mademoiselle Germaine Sombray, the dancer. Fine jewelry, champagne full of bubbles, and hearts, perhaps a little the worse for wear, were laid at her feet.

All this did not satisfy her. She tried drugs, and now a few years later, she appeared an old shriveled, unhappy, penniless woman, sitting in court, a lawyer begging the judge to be lenient, with a poor thief, because of her past glory.

Don't miss that page in the American Weekly tomorrow and make sure that you put it where somebody will see it that needs it.

The other half of that picture shows a little lady with her legs crossed in accordance with modern methods. She is Miss Masako Une, charming Japanese dancer, to whom we are glad to give this publicity.

You could not persuade this intelligent Oriental person to touch drugs. She is modern and athletic. She even has those well made legs insured for $10,000 each, something new in Japan. Once upon a time you could have bought several very good looking Geisha girls for a small part of that sum.

Our neighbors across the Pacific progress in every direction.

Man's Second Blooming

How shall thou know when thou hast reached The Dangerous Age, my Son?

For this is Youth's Second Blooming, when a married man groweth restless and is in danger of skidding, and a bachelor loseth his poise, and is in danger of marrying.

Lo, by these signs shall man perceive that the hour of peril is at hand.

For, verily, the Dangerous Age is upon him, when he ceaseth to wonder how he can dodge Temptation—and beginneth to wonder if he is missing any.

When he chafeth at his suit of sober black, and beginneth to yearn for checkered tweeds and fancy knickers and passionate cravats and snappy shoes.

When he ceaseth to be frightened at the frank admiration of an attractive woman, and is thrilled with gratitude if a blonde glanceth at him invitingly.

When he loseth all interest in middle-aged widows and findeth himself delighting in the innocuous chatter of flappers and subdebs.

When he encourageth the barber to anoint his locks with scented water and is filled with secret delight when the manicurist admireth his hands and praiseth his "youthful looks."

When he beginneth to believe everything that women tell him and to swallow the flattery of hard-boiled damsels and gold-diggers.

When he beginneth to sigh that "life is short" and wonder how much of amusement and diversion and whoopee he can crowd into what is left of it.

When he longeth to be the life of the party and weareth a foolish paper cap with the jaunty feeling that after all he is "just a boy."

Verily, verily, this is the perilous beginning of Indian Summer, when a good husband slippeth the leash, a millionaire writeth foolish letters and a hard-shelled bachelor findeth himself before the white-ribboned altar and knoweth not how he got there.

Then take heed, my Son, and WATCH THY STEP. For the follies of youth are soon forgotten and forgiven, but the follies of Indian Summer, a man cannot forgive HIMSELF. SELAH.

THE EARTH'S ATTRACTION

By Archibald Henderson

Very few people give any reflection or attach any especial importance to gravitation. The attraction of gravity is at work all the time, like the pressure of the atmosphere or the movement of the Gulf Stream. If we are suddenly called upon to climb a steep hill or to lift a heavy trunk to the top of an autobus we realize that we are doing work—work against the gravitational pull towards the earth's center.

As it happens, it is very necessary to determine the gravitational constant to a high degree of accuracy. And there are variations in this highly important so-called constant. As we recede from the earth's center, the pull of gravity decreases. Thus the pull of gravity serves as a convenient measure for determining the change of curvature of the earth's surface.

In connection with the extensive mapping work of the United States Coast Survey, a base station for gravity is needed in this country. It is quite true, as Dr. Paul R. Heyl says, that measurements throughout the land have been compared with the value of gravity at Washington; but this latter value derives from that at the absolute gravity station at Potsdam in Germany. There are chances for error in transferring values across the ocean, so to speak. Hence the desirability of establishing a base station of our own.

Experiments are now going forward, for this purpose, conducted by the United States Bureau of Standards. These experiments will be carried on over a period of several years, before an exact determination can be reached. The method employed is by means of a pendulum. The pull of the earth may be measured in several ways, notably by the use of a spring scale or by measuring the speed of a falling body. But the most accurate method is by means of a pendulum.

The ordinary mode of suspension is by means of a watch spring, flexible and supporting a weight or bob. For the most accurate measurement, this is unsatisfactory owing to the difficulty of determining the exact point of support. In precision measurements the pendulum employed is usually supported by a smooth plane resting on a knife edge of agate or fused silica.

The pendulum is of fused quartz, which expands very little with rise of temperature. To obviate temperature changes as fully as possible the experiments at the Bureau of Standards are carried out in a room 35 feet underground. Moreover, to avoid disturbing effects, such as air currents and frictional resistance, the pendulum is swung inside a metal case from which the air has been exhausted.

The time of swing for a pendulum is dependent upon two quantities: the force of gravity and the length of the pendulum. Consequently, if two of these three quantities are accurately determined, we may calculate the third.

The length of the pendulum is determined by comparison with a standard bar, of fused quartz, the length of which is accurately known from its own comparison with the standard meter bar. This last is, according to law, the standard for our system of measurement. The time of swing is very accurately determined by means of an astronomical clock, the rate of which is checked daily by the Naval Observatory time signals.

When these experiments have been completed, the United States will be independent of Germany or of any other nation in the matter of a base station for its survey work.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Fifteen years ago I was America's champion blusher. For no reason at all I would flash suddenly scarlet any place, anytime. If I started to discuss such triviata as the weather I was likely to flame into an 18 karat blush and run a temperature of 103. Maybe 106.

I cannot recall how many times at dinner parties I would be struggling along to converse casually only to have some soandso point and blurt out: "Look, he's blushing!" From boyhood I answered all the quick ads beginning: "Are you easily embarrassed?" Was I? O, lady!

If anyone in street cars or other places gave me more than a passing glance I was immediately on fire. There were times when I would be sitting alone reading a book and coming upon some passage stressing an aphrodisiac would emit a sudden glow like the blare of a rocket.

This was not only torturous in youth but extended through early manhood indeed until a few years ago. Then all at once I ran out of blushes. I even read an unexpurgated copy of "Lady Chatterton's Lover" recently and throughout remained a statue in chalk. Old and burnt out!

I sat through all the Broadway plays from Bert Lahr's medical scene to the carrying on in "Lysistrata" as pale, but of course not quite as interesting, as Eva La Gallienne. I finally decided I had grown blase or had used up all my red corpuscles.

Are of anaemia had me. Certainly my blushing days were over. No longer would I be the pink-faced boob with everybody looking at me pityingly when I happened to open my trap. Not long ago I stood right up and spoke at a banquet. I was that cured. Or so I thought.

But I had not yet met the type of flapper—1931 model—I encountered today. She phoned from a reception room downstairs: "I am coming up." Just like that. And a few seconds later there was a vicious bang at the door. You know like a house detective.

In the first place I was not properly attired to greet strange ladies, wearing at the moment a set of pajamas, a flannel robe and house slippers. So I told the servant to present my compliments, explain circumstances and express my regrets. I heard him trying to convey the message but the next thing I knew she had breezed into the workshop—vibrant with youth and dewey with girlish freshness. And such freshness!

* * *

"What's the grand idea," she began, "of being so over-the-river. You are not exactly all The 400." She drew up a chair, reached for a cigaret, lighted it and inhaled an ankle deep drag. She could not have been more than 20, perkily dressed and astonishingly saucy. Struggling for dignity I inquired: "To what happy chance am I indebted for this visit?" (I got that one out of a book.)

"Be yourself, old thing. Mama spank!" she warned. And added: "Had I announced myself you would not have known me and I might not have gotten in so I crashed."

Then she abruptly interjected: "Say, you are not such an antique as I imagined. Let's see you slip out your uppers." Either she was stark mad or some one was playing a practical joke. Very patiently I told her it was a busy day and to state her business.

"That's a bowl of cherries" she cracked. "Turning out that chatter of yours doesn't take five minutes. I could do it standing on one foot in a canoe. And don't go arty on me—the slave to belles lettres and other heigh-ho.

"I was lunching in a restaurant around the corner, had a couple of poisonous stingarees and all of a sudden decided to see what a columnist looks like. Here I am. There you are. And that's a nice fat that. Have your man toss me out. I'd like to shake-up old Park avenue with a blood curdling scream anyway."

I could see the thick tabloid headlines 'Silver Haired Roue Attacks Young Beauty in Love Nest' so I let her rave. At length she blurred her cigarette, jumped up and popped out as suddenly as she came. But before closing the front door, rushed back, arched her head coquettishly and baby-talked: "You funny old badsy-wadsy man-ikins!" So I'm not only blushing again, I'm burning up.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

This I Believe

This I believe:
At last the honest laborer will receive
Full wages for his toil.
It may not be
In yellow gold a man can touch and see;
Gold once was pirates' spoil.

Gold has been tool
Since time began, of villian and of fool,
The high reward of vice;
The honest man
Who gives his best throughout his whole life's span
Asks more than this poor price.

Ere he goes hence
For duties done he will find recompense,
From every evil freed;
This I believe:
The loyal spirit will at last receive
High meed for dream and deed!

Text for Today And if children, then heirs: heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ; if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together. For I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us.—Romans, viii:17, 18.

Brazen Impudence!

Things Have Come to a Pretty Pass When Bandits Hold Up the Police—Brief Comment on Local News.

The limit of effrontery was reached by the lone bandit who entered the office of Justice of the Peace Eugene Mehrlich in Shaler Township Thursday night and held up not only the Squire but also the chief of police of Millvale and a corporal of the State Highway Patrol whom he found there. Of course the miscreant did not know the police were there, or at any rate did not know they were policemen. Otherwise he could hardly have been so foolhardy.

It is hard to suppress a smile at the thought of the corporal's being robbed of his pistol by the holdup man. Joking aside, nearly everyone, taken by surprise, and with two revolvers pointed at him, would no doubt have acted just as the policeman did. There does seem, though, to be need for teaching the police the old-fashioned western art of being quick on the draw.

The robber was evidently not impressed by the sentence of from 30 to 60 years in the penitentiary imposed just the day before on the Perry State Bank bandits. More probably he was impressed by the chance for leniency held out by the action of Pittsburgh magistrates who have been letting holdup men off with light fines.

The slot machine racket comes to the fore again with the news of the theft of several of the devices in a bandit's raid on a Smallman street restaurant. Gambling opportunities are said to be especially tempting right now to persons desperately in need of money, who hope that by risking a small sum they may make a "killing." If there is any form of gambling that they should avoid above others, it is the slot machines, which offer the gamblers scarcely a chance.

How the people of Pittsburgh would cheer the police if they should do as the police of Montreal have done during the last few days—seize all the slot machines in the city, smash them, and contribute the money found in them to charity! The sum thus confiscated in Montreal amounted to some thousands of dollars, and probably a large sum could be found in Pittsburgh's slot machines, too.

Figuring out moves on the political chessboard is a favorite recreation in dull times. That is the explanation for much of the speculation that is now going on as to what will occur in the elections next autumn. It is hard to imagine "Joe" Armstrong and "Buck" McGovern as running mates for the two Republican county commissionerships, as has been suggested; yet Pittsburgh has seen politics make bedfellows just as strange. Such a combination certainly would add to the gayety of the race.

City Council has done well in arranging for a public hearing next Wednesday on the Thirsty-first Ward playground project. The citizens of that part of the city are in disagreement as to whether the proposed Lincoln Place site of 27 acres should be bought or if it would be better to have several smaller playgrounds in scattered locations. Some serious charges have been made in the heat of the discussion, and it will be beneficial to have the subject thoroughly aired.

Commendation is due the Manchester Educational Center for its enterprise and public service in arranging for an Institute on Unemployment with well-known economists and social workers as speakers. It is a problem calling for suggestions from thoughtful and experienced persons, and the North Side meetings may be of real help in coping with the situation.

Admire This COW And Beware of Drugs

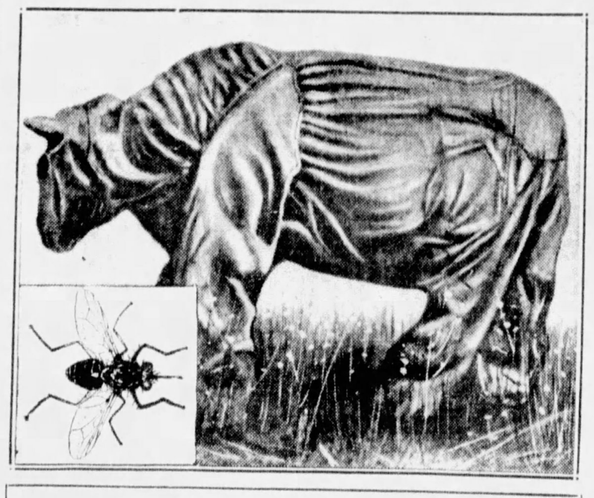
"woven rhinestones and imitation rubies." They live in Hollywood, where $500 more or less make little difference.

Millions of poor girls live and die without ever having a $500 pair of dance slippers. They may find comfort in the fact that one glance of the eye is worth more than all the rhinestones and artificial rubies ever made, if it is the right kind of an eye.



CLOTHES AND THE COW

About that cow and the strange clothes. She lives in Africa, and is dressed up like this when it is necessary for her to travel through regions infested by the tse-tse fly. A bite from that fly is death for man or beast. It implants in the blood the dreadful sleeping sickness.

Wonderful are the ways of nature. That germ of the sleeping death lives normally in the blood of the crocodile, which gets used to it. The crocodile lies on the bank with his mouth open, digesting. The tse-tse fly bites the crocodile's gums, gathers some of the germs, and implants them in man.

All these things and many others the American Weekly tells you each week. All are important, and stimulate the imagination.

We meant to include a picture of the imitation "cow" which science has used in Africa, but there is no room for it. This is an artificial cow life size, nicely colored to attract the tse-tse fly. Eighteen of these dummies were set up, arranged so that when the tse-tse fly got in, it couldn't get out. One dummy cow in one day caught 1,400 of the dangerous pests, including 900 females, that will never be weanlings. It means perhaps the extermination of the fly, in time. Whatever you do, read the American Weekly every week, it is delivered to you with the Sunday Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.
